- Leader: Kristen McGreger, adjunct instructor
- Members: senior instructors, adjuncts, and faculty administrators

Goals:
- Develop ideas on how service learning can be made accessible to INTO USF students
- Explore options in the form of classes, clubs, activities
- Survey students on interest in service-learning and the possible formats.

Target: Come up with a proposal detailing the most recommended option for us to proceed developing that will make service learning available to INTO USF students.

Next Steps

- Looked at our school’s existing partnerships
- Looked at additional partnership possibilities in community
- Made contact to check volunteer requirements at different sites such as background checks, immigration rules, etc...
- Developed a list of most suitable organizations to work with
- Examined different models and decided which was most appropriate for our context
CREATIVE TEAM RECOMMENDATIONS

- Develop a course for the Academic English Program (AE)
  - Academic component of service-learning better suited to a course than a club
  - Longer AE term allows students to have a deeper experience
  - AE focuses on content-based language teaching & project-based courses
  - With the AE course fully developed, a piece could be re-worked for General English at later date

- Use a model in which students each select one organization and visit the site multiple times throughout the semester
  - Easier logistics regarding transportation
FOLLOW-UP COURSE DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

- Fall 2012
- AE Curriculum Coordinator & interested members of the creative team (faculty and admin)
- Met to develop the course guide, discuss class components and projects, and work on general course weekly plan
- Developed course guide & schedule
- New course launched as an elective for Spring 2013
The goal of this high-intermediate to advanced elective course is to introduce students to the concept of civic engagement and build knowledge on social issues through a service learning experience. During the course students will think critically about problems and solutions for social issues affecting the local community. Through the completion of site visits and a service-learning project students will experience community engagement and will reflect on the real solutions they see in action as a volunteer.

The course focuses on developing a student's ability to:
1. Learn about what service learning is, social issues affecting community welfare and how volunteering addresses those issues.
2. Gain an awareness of civic responsibility and the opportunities available for civic engagement.
3. Research a social issue or community welfare problem to find out the main issues and solutions surrounding the problem.
4. Learn the language and conversation strategies needed in order to contact and arrange to be a volunteer at a service learning site.
5. Become familiar with cultural guidelines and expected norms when working as a volunteer with different segments of the population including the elderly, homeless, and children.
6. Complete multiple ongoing reflective journal entries detailing expectations, thoughts and reactions to the service learning experience.
7. Complete a service learning project which includes volunteering at a site multiple times over six weeks for a minimum of six hours and producing a reflective report which is communicated both orally and in writing.

Course Objectives
To achieve the course goals, students will learn:
1. Knowledge and vocabulary related to social issues as selected by the teacher and students' interests.
2. The meaning of civic engagement will be explored and students will become familiar with the local organizations whose purpose is to aid social issues. Students will also become familiar with resources available to them to get contact information for local service learning opportunities (i.e. BullsServe, local chapters of organizations).
3. How to use the internet and USF library resources to find information on service learning organizations and social issues.
4. Language needed to make polite requests, how to write an email asking about a service learning opportunity, language used to communicate on the phone to get information on a service learning opportunity.
5. Behavioral expectations when working with the elderly, homeless, and children to include what you can/can’t do, how to talk, what information/topics are OK or not OK.
6. To write reflective journal entries focusing on the service learning experience on various topics such as expectations, reactions, thoughts, and applications for the future.
7. How to complete a project describing the service learning experience in detail and expressing your feelings and thoughts about the experience, making connections between what you experience and what you already know from your own culture.

Student Learning Outcomes
During the course, students will need to perform the following integrated tasks and projects to demonstrate significant progress in learning the course objectives:
1. Complete activities that demonstrate the use of content knowledge, new vocabulary, listening and reading strategies about social issues.
2. Complete homework assignments that involve researching and reporting on the missions of local community agencies.
3. Complete in-class activities that practice role-playing activities for developing conversation strategies useful for site visits.
4. Complete homework assignments that involve emailing and calling to inquire about volunteer opportunities.
5. Complete multiple one to two-page written reflective journal entries including your expectations, a description of the volunteer experience and your feeling or reactions.
6. Create an individual or group project that involves relating the background of a social issue, informing the audience about your chosen organization(s), describing your expectations and experiences during the site visits and reflecting on what you have learned throughout the process.

- giving a chance to be a volunteer, improving English skills outside the campus, getting practical information about volunteering in the USA, interacting with native speakers
2. What are the biggest lessons you have learned from this class?

- small things can make a big difference in people’s hearts
- the value and the importance of volunteering and giving back to the community
- you don’t need money to help others
- we are all humans we need each other
- responsibility for others
- helping others is helping ourselves
- communication with different people
- humanitarian work
- how social issues affect our communities’ welfare
3. What was the most surprising or shocking information you have learned in this class?
   - hundreds of people do not have homes, food or clothes
   - a lot of refugees and people in need
   - you can work with horses and disabled children
   - volunteering can make you a better man and make you feel happy

   - improved my self-esteem, my English skills, and my social skills
   - taught me responsibility for others who are less fortunate
   - taught me how to prepare a poster presentation
   - taught me about Educational system in the USA
   - taught me compassion
5. What are the benefits of taking this class?
   - improving English skills and social skills
   - learning how to be a productive member of a society

   - learning about American culture
   - changing one’s mind set and broadening horizons (I will continue to volunteer in the future)
   - having fun

6. Would you recommend this class to other students and why?
   - without hesitation, very valuable in many ways
   - Yes, it helps students get ready to join and live in a society
   - Yes, you can change someone’s future
   - Yes, I will call my friends and together we will help the poor
Next time: Student Suggestions

- more hours to volunteer / more outside activities, but with less other work
  - Response: Immigration issues constrain the ability to cancel classes; with more hours (desirable) balance other classwork
- make connections with all organization that would welcome students so that it is easier for students to find a place to work with
  - Response: Develop a better short list with approved partners; want students to practice communicative skills
- taking students to [all the] places where they could volunteer first as a group so they can understand the concept better
- provide transportation so students can volunteer together as a group
  - Response: Great suggestions, logistically (and financially) challenging
DO’S AND DON’TS

- Do frequent check-ins with your students to avoid end-of-semester rush
- Do require reflection to relate to specific course content and course goals
- Do start out small with one or two community partners

- Don’t create work for your community partners
- Don’t let your student develop “savior” attitude
- Don’t reinvent the wheel if existing resources already exist
