Genealogy Statistics and "The Next 25 Years".

American Demographics, issue of April 2003, beginning on page 24, lists population projections for the next quarter century.

It is my opinion that a projection of various age groups for the next 25 years, from 2000 - 2025, combined with accurate age related interest levels in genealogy and family history, would be helpful to Librarians Serving Genealogists, to obtain additional funding for genealogical resources needed for future projected library use.

Some populations should not be included. For example, in 2000, the number of prisoners under the jurisdiction of the Federal or State adult correctional authorities was 1,381,892 and overall, the United States incarcerated 2,071,686 persons . . .
http://www.wordiq.com/definition/United\_States\_prison\_population

"The biggest growth market, by far, will be the 65 and older set. . . . In 2000, this group included 35 million people . . . By 2025 . . . the number of seniors will double, to more than 70 million people."

The total US population is projected to go from 281,421,906 in 2000 to an estimated population of 351,070,000 in 2025. Of this 69,648,094 increase:
Under 5 years goes from 19,175,798 to 23,183,000 or 4,007,202 increase.
Age 5 - 9 years goes from 20,549,505 to 22,845,000 or 2,295,495 increase.
Age 10 - 14 years goes from 20,528,072 to 23,166,000 or 2,637,928 increase.

The late teen years, aged 15 - 19, shows growth from 20,219,890 to 23,449,000 or 3,229,110 increase, of which part of this group includes American adults 18 +.

This survey table on page 25, shows population figures for 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, 75-79 and:
Age 80-84 years goes from 4,945,367 to 9,638,000 or 4,692,633 increase.
Age 85 + years goes from 4,239,587 to 8,930,000 or 4,690,413 increase.

The survey also suggests that . . . "grandparents can be age 45, 65 or 85 . . . ". The Education World web site notes "that 4 million children in 3 million households are being raised by their grandparents . . . that more than 5 million children live in a household with a grandparent present . . . ". [Links last updated 09/10/2004]

http://www.education-world.com/a\_lesson/lesson136.shtml

It is my opinion that the 1995 survey by Maritz Marketing Research, that showed ["over 45% of American adults, or 87.5 million people, are interested in genealogy-almost 14 million 'involved a great deal,' and another 74 million 'somewhat interested.2"], should be carefully updated by age groups projected into "The Next 25 Years".

Tracy,

When I told the patron, She said she had given me the incorrect time period.

Here is what she said about it:

? "It wouldn't be the Home Guard, because the time frame is 1914. Home Relief Association is more than likely an organization formed by some of the Civil War Veterans to help their wives in case of their death. Even if there were only 35 or so members, with each paying $1.00 would have been a great help back in 1914.

? I would like to ask another question. Where can I find what years Poll Taxes were paid in Denton and surrounding counties? I have the receipts for the years 1925 and 1927 of my grandparents. It gives their age, how long they lived in Texas and how long in the county. I would like to find this information on other family members."

OH well,

THANKS for your help,

Diane

Poll taxes were paid in Texas up until the 1940s or so. I have seen the poll tax receipts of my parents & grandparents from Harris County from that time period.

If I remember correctly, they didn't have to put their exact ages, so my grandmother & mother coyly put "21+".

I know I am a bit late to weigh in on this, but I just wrote a paper that included this topic, so I thought I would share it. In 2000, Maritz Research conducted a poll that showed 60% of Americans are at least somewhat interested in genealogy (up from 45% reported in the same company's poll in 1996), and that one third of that 60% were actively involved in the hobby. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the total population in 2000 was 280,218,917. Sixty percent of that is 168,131,350. So a little over 168 million Americans are at least interested in their family's ancestry.

One of the authors I studied for the paper (who's name I can't remember right now, but if someone wants it, let me know) conservatively estimated that there were 11 million websites dedicated at least partially to genealogy and 280 million documents of genealogical interest in the world.

Finally, according to the Directory of Genealogical and Historical Libraries, Archives, and Collections, there are approximately 27,000 genealogy collections in North America.

Sincerely,

Miss Lauren K. Landis, Genealogy Division Mgr.

There is a link to some of this information at:

Maritz Research - Employee Engagement

<http://www.maritzresearch.com/release.asp?rc=195&p=3&T=P>

As noted from a previous posting, in part,
[Genealogy Statistics and "The Next 25 Years"]
the total US population of 281,421,906 in 2000

has: Under 5 years 19,175,798

has: Age 5 - 9 years 20,549,505

has: Age 10 - 14 years 20,528,072

or above 60 million young American individuals.

In 2000, the United States had incarcerated over two million individuals.

Knowing genealogy interest and active researchers by ethnicity, age, religion, career preference, or other selected interest groups (that could then be regionally matched to the sphere of influence of any particular library district), would be valuable, in my opinion.

Respectfully yours,

I agree.... I think we should "color code" the whole Library. You know, Red for one state, green for one country, Etc.

But, who would take those "Bubble gum" colors.

Hello,

I'm teaching a genealogy study group on voter registration records. Does anyone know when voter registration first began? Do you have any suggestions for areas of research? I've found four articles in the ancestry.com archives and the sites from Cyndi's List on the Internet. What might I find at a library? I live in the San Francisco area.

Thank you for your assistance. My presentation is November 18.

Being a "grassroots historian" as has always been my custom, I saved the last poll tax receipt the State of Texas allowed me to pay. Looking upon it today, I find that on 29 October 1965, I paid for voting privileges for the year 1966.

What was Scarecrow Press thinking when they made the new volumes of the Italians to America series RED instead of GREEN? Ughhh!! Even the new Germans to America volume is red instead of the maroon color to match the rest of the series... (Ok - that's my complaint for the day!)

By doing a google search for history "voter registration laws"
I got some good links.
One that contains a concise history of such laws is at

We used to have the old AncestryPlus, but now have a subscription to the new Ancestry Library Edition. Although I regret the loss of the PERSI and some of the city directory databases, there are some good things there, especially the passenger lists. Although the printing on the census is not as good as Heritage Quest, it is adequate with the upgraded viewer which can be used. I like being able to pick up the household groups in some censuses, where the initial entry (where you click on the image) sometimes allows to bring up the whole household. I find that helpful. It would be nice to have both this and HQ since each cover different items, and have some census that the other lacks.

I used voter registration cards in Boston to find the court and date of my grandfather's naturalization. Without that information, I would not have been able to locate immigration records. So, in Massachusetts in 1900, voter registration cards are available.

Likewise, I found my mother's naturalization date from information she supplied when registering in a town she had just moved to. Here, though, they didn't use cards but a register index for which they supplied a photocopy.

It helps to know the street address of the registeree.

Dear Fellow Genealibers,

We have just found, in the bowels of our library, a copy of the "History of Salisbury, N.H.," written by Dr. John Dearborn and published in 1890. There is no title or copyright page. Do any of your libraries have a copy of this book? Does it HAVE a title page? If so, could you possibly copy and send it to me at the address below, so that we can catalog it? Thank you for your help.

Hello,

I have figured the postage rate using media mail to be $3.94. i will box them up and send them today with an invoice if that is fine with you. Thanks, Mercedes

Dear Fellow Genealibers,

Am preparing the Licking Lantern, a publication of the Licking County Genealogical Society, for binding. Am missing volume 4 #1 The society is unable to provide a replacement nor was the contact person interested in making a photocopy.

If any one has a spare copy or is willing to make a photocopy for me that would be great.

Reply:

If you don't find it elsewhere, we (the Wisconsin Historical Society) have the Licking Lantern on microfilm v. 2:no. 5-v. 15:no. 4 (1977:winter-1990:Dec). Call# P90-6123. If you contact Lori Bessler, Microforms Librarian, at 608-264-6536 or lbbessler@whs.wisc.edu, I'm sure she can provide a printout of that issue, perhaps as a courtesy.

Just a reminder: we have a very comprehensive collection of genealogical periodicals from the U.S. and Canada (NOT just Wisconsin!). See <http://madcat.library.wisc.edu>.

Hate to tell you, but our "Hoot Owl" runs all night, beginning at the closing of the Library at 5:00 p.m. on a Friday, and ending 7:00 a.m. on Saturday morning, before the Library reopens at 9:00 a.m. The program is run by Mining Your History Foundation, our "Friends of the Library" group, and is a fundraiser for them. Check out <http://www.rootsweb.com/~myhf/> and <http://www.rootsweb.com/~myhf/hootowl.html>. The most recent "Hoot Owl" was limited to our seating capacity (at tables only) of 48 so each person could claim a space of their own. (The limit has been lower in the past.) We supply only two paid staff members for the event, both of whom in the past have taken equal time off in lieu of overtime pay. (They were Archives volunteers and participated as volunteer staff for the event before they became paid staff members.) Also, the building/agency security staff supplies a security guard throughout. Board members and other knowledgeable members of MYHF assist those of the general public who attend. They charge a fee, usually around $35, and members bring snacks and soft drinks. They take up a collection from those interested and send out for pizza around midnight. Guests may bring their own food. Food and beverages are limited to a single conference room.

The staff mostly spends time making photocopies, assisting with the microfilm readers and printers, and shelving books. We usually make a nice profit from all of the copies sold in such a concentrated period of time.

Tours of "behind-the-scenes" areas and Closed Stacks floors are a big attraction for first-timers. Signup sheets with time limits are maintained for microfilm readers, microfilm printers and computer access. As far as I know, there has never been a problem regarding sharing the machines.

Items from Special Collections and images from the Photo Collection are available only if requested in advance.

Actually, we have a few people who fly in for the weekend, and others that drive in from all over West Virginia and border states. Most people stick it out all night. The earliest anyone leaves is midnight-1:00 a.m. Some people bring pillows and sleeping bags and take naps. Most stay up all night and many will spend part of the day Friday before the program, and much of the day Saturday after the program, researching in the Library as regular patrons.

As far as I know, liability has not been an issue, at least not any more than it is with the general public. Our building houses the State museum, galleries, a large hall and the State Theater, and is in constant use for all kinds of events, although not usually after midnight. The majority of people who come are well known to us, and they take care of each other. If you do not typically host a lot of events, you may want to check your liability policy. Having a security guard present may help also.

Hello.

For those of you who have sponsored genealogy "lock-ins" at your library:

- 1) Have you limited the number of people who can register?
- 2) Please tell me you did this only until 11pm or midnight, not all night?
- 3) How many staff did you use?
- 4) Any liability information you would share?

This is something I've been thinking about, but am not sure about doing.

Hello,

I have one copy of the following that I will be glad to donate to an interested public library (please reply off list):

New England Historic Genealogical Society. Circulating Library Catalog. 2 vols. January 1998 edition. 8 x 11 paperback. (Vol. 1 is genealogies; Vol. 2 is research aids like local histories). They are nice reference tools to give folks a quick idea of what's available.

Archivists and Genealogical Researchers:
A Bibliography, by Susan Tucker,
Newcomb College Center for Research on Women,
at Tulane University
"This bibliography is an ongoing project centered around ICA's Committee on Outreach and User Services. Special attention is paid to genealogical researchers, who -- worldwide -- make up a consistently large proportion of the users of most archives. Abstracts have been added for selected articles, those that deal specifically with family history or those that are insightful to the study of archival attitudes towards genealogy."

Thinking like a Genealogist?:

Information-Seeking Behavior of Genealogists,
by Wendy M. Duff and Catherine A. Johnson

"Abstract: Until the 1990s archivists gave very little attention to studying their user population. None of the user studies that have been conducted in the last decade have focused solely on genealogists, on of the most frequent users of archives. This paper gives the results of a study involving in-depth interviews with ten genealogists. The findings provide information on the stages of genealogical research, how genealogists search for information, the access tools they use, the knowledge required, and the barriers they face. The findings of this study can be used to improve the design of archival information systems that will facilitate access for this important group of users."

I haven't had time to actually READ these yet, but I recently interlibrary loaned the following 2 articles (I found them listed in Library Lit)

from: PNLA Quarterly (official publication of the Pacific Northwest Library Association) (ISSN 0030-8188)

Francis, Laurie S. The Genealogy reference interview. v. 68, #3, Spr 2004, p. 13-15.

Francis, Laurie S. The Genealogy search process. v. 68, #3, Spr 2004, p. 12, 22

They may not be as "scholarly" as you wished, but may be of interest to others on this list.

I am a member of the Napa Valley Genealogical Society where I am also the Computer Chairperson. We have a problem with a member (or 2) who have used the computers to access undesirable web sites. Now we are loaded with all sorts of nasties (parasites, spy ware, etc.) which have been difficult to remove.

Also, games have been downloaded from the Internet and unwanted programs installed on the computers. There are also problems with desktop icons being added, removed and moved. Only a few of our volunteer staff understand computers. The others wouldn't even realize it if the computer was being misused right in front of them. We have posted warnings in our monthly newsletter, as well as on the computers but to no avail.

We are preparing to purchase 3 new computers and I remember reading that XP Professional has a tool that can eliminate these problems, possibly by doing a daily restore. It was some month ago that I read this, (possibly from this group) but at the time I didn't realize I would someday be needing this information. I wish I had paid attention!

I realize that XP Home version also has the restore capabilities but, so far, have not been successful with that tool. Apparently, XP Pro has a more effective restore tool used for businesses.

How do other libraries deal with this problem? A Firewall program could help with the Internet problems but wouldn't help with the unwanted installation of programs, etc.

I'm open to all suggestions. Thanks

We use a program called Fortres which blocks access to everything except the icons on the desktop. Patrons can not access the computer settings or even the start button items. It also prevents the downloading of programs and installation while it is running. Staff can turn it of with a password. Has worked well for us.

Many libraries have been very successful in using a program called DEEPPFREEZE to avoid many of these problems. It works well for our library and has saved much grief. Virus protection is also still needed but DEEPPFREEZE does a different function.

It can be set so patrons can not change anything. The administrator can do anything and downloaded "trash" is wiped out each day so you can start clean. Ours runs at 05:00 and is fine.

Our Library received 4 Gateway computers from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. In order to install anything the hard drive must be unlocked with a key, which we do not let patrons have. These are great public access machines. These computers or something rather similar can be purchased.

Deepfreeze is a great program for public computers, but you will need to remind patrons that they will be unable to save anything to the hard drive. (It will vanish after shut down.)

A free program reviewed in PC Magazine that might be able to remove some of the "nasties" you describe is called Ad-aware. I use it on my home PC and am pleased. I have not had to use it to uninstall anything really nasty though:

<http://www.pcworld.com/resource/printable/article/0,aid,115939,00.asp>

Here's a description and download location:

You'll want to be careful about restricting patrons from downloading altogether. There are a lot of "legitimate" downloads including the Mr Sid and Enhanced Viewer plug-ins on Ancestry, for example.

Good luck.

Many libraries have been very successful in using a program called DEEPPFREEZE to avoid many of these problems. It works well for our library and has saved much grief. Virus protection is also still needed but DEEPPFREEZE does a different function.

It can be set so patrons can not change anything. The administrator can do anything and downloaded "trash" is wiped out each day so you can start clean. Ours runs at 05:00 and is fine.

Subject: [Genealib] Windows XP Professional

I am a member of the Napa Valley Genealogical Society where I am also the Computer Chairperson. We have a problem with a member (or 2) who have used the computers to access undesirable web sites. Now we are loaded with all sorts of nasties (parasites, spy ware, etc.) which have been difficult to remove.

Also, games have been downloaded from the Internet and unwanted programs installed on the computers. There are also problems with desktop icons being added, removed and moved. Only a few of our volunteer staff understand computers. The others wouldn't even realize it if the computer was being misused right in front of them. We have posted warnings in our monthly newsletter, as well as on the computers but to no avail.

We are preparing to purchase 3 new computers and I remember reading that XP Professional has a tool that can eliminate these problems, possibly by doing a daily restore. It was some month ago that I read this, (possibly from this group) but at the time I didn't realize I would someday be needing this information. I wish I had paid attention!

I realize that XP Home version also has the restore capabilities but, so far, have not been successful with that tool. Apparently, XP Pro has a more effective restore tool used for businesses.

How do other libraries deal with this problem? A Firewall program could help with the Internet problems but wouldn't help with the unwanted installation of programs, etc.

I'm open to all suggestions. Thanks

A few days ago I submitted a question regarding problems with patrons going onto undesirable web sites which infected our computers with worms, parasites etc. A few also installed unauthorized programs. I received back a number of replies suggesting various solutions. One suggested Centurion Guard, another suggested Fortress but all others suggested DeepFreeze (Faronics). I did some online research, then made a call to the company, leaving a message that I was interested in their product and needed some additional questions answered. Within an hour, I had 3 different people return my call, making sure I had all my questions answered. Incredible customer service!

Sometime very important that I learned was if a computer was hit by a virus, simply rebooting would eliminate the virus. WOW!!!

Thanks you sooooo much for all your help. What a great group!

Thank you Kristen. I have also used Adaware and it's great (and free). In fact it found over 6,000 (yes, six thousand) errors on the 3 computers at the library. That's why I'm desperate to get DeepFreeze. Also, patrons have no reason to save anything on the computer so that isn't a problem. They can save to CD or 3 1/2" floppy.

Thanks for reminding me about the legitimate sites. One of the staff will download those as they will be the only ones with the password. Since we will be getting new computers, we would have to do that anyway. The 3 new computers will be used only for online work and the 3 older computers (that have caddie drives) will be used only for accessing our collection of approximately 400 CDs.

Deepfreeze is a great program for public computers, but you will need to remind patrons that they will be unable to save anything to the hard drive. (It will vanish after shut down.)

A free program reviewed in PC Magazine that might be able to remove some of the "nasties" you describe is called Ad-aware. I use it on my home PC and am pleased. I have not had to use it to uninstall anything really nasty though:

Miranda,

I have been watching the Genealib for a response to your inquiry. The Boulder Genealogy Society houses its collection in the public library as a separate entity. We are thinking of proposing a partnership. Would mind letting me know the kind of responses you are receiving? Also, if you know of some good contacts, I would appreciate you sending me that direction.

In advance thank you,

Hello, Bill.

We've received one helpful email and then some promises of scanned or faxed policies. I have found some helpful guidelines in a few places. Will share what I've found and will send you a copy of the agreement I've proposed (which isn't much to bark about) and a copy of final product. A search in the Genealib archives was somewhat helpful too. I'll give you some citations for articles too. Will get my day organized first, though, and be back.

Back soon

Miranda,

Thanks for your immediate response. I look forward to receiving the materials. Take your time, nothing in Boulder happens over night. I just realized you are a fellow Coloradian. I would like to come down and visit you and your facility sometime. I understand the desk being always full.

With all three products, a simple reboot will undo anything a user has done...mass file deleting, viruses, programs, etc. This isn't such a good thing for home PC's because you would be unable to actually save anything, install anything, or make any changes.

Besides Faronics' Deep Freeze, Centurion Tech puts out two products: Centurion Guard and DriveShield. DriveShield is much like Deep Freeze in that it is a purely software-based solution. It is also about the same price, but it has an annoying registration flaw. Of the two, I recommend Deep Freeze unless you have a Windows NT machine because Deep Freeze will not work with NT for some silly reason.

Centurion Guard is a hardware/software solution that costs about 3 times as much as the other two. It's a key based system that is more reliable than Drive Shield.

At OPL we use Centurion Guard almost exclusively. Mostly because cheaper alternatives were not available when we started doing this. We have many, many computers in the Winnefox system that have either Deep Freeze or DriveShield. We recommend it to every small library with public computers.

We use Fortres as well to lock down the options users have. It keeps people from roaming the computer to play Solitaire or whatever, but it is not as critical as Deep Freeze."

Hello Genealib,

I am new to this list. I am hoping someone can tell me the meaning of the word "juleus," an occupation enumerated on the 1881 Canada Census for the relative of a patron here.

I've exhausted all sources here and lists (mostly English) of historical occupations on the web. I've seen the census doc, so know the spelling is correct. Anybody heard of this term?

Contents of the October 2004 issue include:

* The Bristoe Tract - Rent Rolls, Map and History, by Darlene L. Hunter. The early history of the area between Brentsville and Bristow, Virginia, is illuminated by an important map prepared in 1824.

* A List of Women [Voters] in Prince William County ... 1923, by Ronald R. Turner. The earliest compiled list of females eligible to vote, arranged by magisterial district.

* 1850 Federal Slave Schedules, Prince William County, by Beverly R. Veness. A complete transcription with pages restored to their original order.

* Memorial notices for local historians John K. Gott, Joel J. Thrasher, and Sarah M. Turner.

* A gazetteer description of Prince William County in 1852.

* A brief history of the spa at Sudley Springs.

You may use Control+F to search the text for keywords of interest to you.

We invite your comments and submissions.

To Librarians who have public computers,
Recently I unveiled a project called "GenealogyBuff.com" at <http://www.genealogybuff.com>
This site allows one to input a surname, after which several lists of major database links will result. These links are "pre-fitted with the surname so that the researcher can simply click on the desired link and a new window will open showing all entries for the desired surname.
GenealogyBuff.com also has a growing library section. At this time, only United States data is being added; international data will eventually be included.

My other projects include:

Obituary Central
<http://www.obitcentral.com>
Obituary Links Page

Marriage Search Engines
<http://www.genlookups.com/marriages/>

Thank you,

Hi!

This is very unfamiliar territory for me and I was hoping someone out there could help give me some direction. I am trying to help get someone started whose family member came to Nova Scotia Canada as a defector in the '50s. Also is there a book on Russian surnames because the surname they now use (Fetinko) may have been modified from the original. Help!!

Thanx in advance,

Eighteen years ago I helped a person at the Dallas Public Library with a similar question. I used a book on Russian surnames to start the search. FirstSearch has 41 records under the two keywords of "Russian" and "surnames." While I do not remember the title of the book I used years ago, I do remember that I had to first figure out what the naming patterns were before a suitable answer could be found for the patron.

Today, I would also add the use of a modern Russian-English dictionary. I would ask the patron if their surname has a meaning. It might be possible to reverse-engineer the name change this way.

Good luck,

Hi---

Perhaps this book could help in this situation:

Shea, Jonathan D.
TITLE: In their words : a genealogist's translation guide to Polish, German, Latin, and Russian documents.
Volume two, Russian
PUBINFO: New Britain, CT : Language & Lineage Press, 2002.
DESCRPT: x, 486 p. : ill., maps ; 28 cm.
NOTES1: Includes bibliographical references (p.
467-469)
and index.
SUBJECT1: Russian language--Glossaries, vocabularies, etc.
SUBJECT2: Russian language--Translating into English.
SUBJECT3: Registers of births, etc.--Russia--Handbooks, manuals, etc.

I am not sure how much it contains about surnames; but it may contain some other leads.

Hi!

This is very unfamiliar territory for me and I was hoping someone out there could help give me some direction. I am trying to help get someone started whose family member came to Nova Scotia Canada as a defector in the '50s. Also is there a book on Russian surnames because the surname they now use (Fetinko) may have been modified from the original. Help!!

Thanx in advance,

One of the members of the Cloud County Genealogical Society that does quite abit of French Canadian research suggested you try a Latin dictionary. She uses one along with French frequently in some of her research. I may have more later as this has ticked her interest.

Hello Genealib,

I am new to this list. I am hoping someone can tell me the meaning of the word "juleus," an occupation enumerated on the 1881 Canada Census for the relative of a patron here.

I've exhausted all sources here and lists (mostly English) of historical occupations on the web. I've seen the census doc, so know the spelling is correct. Anybody heard of this term?

Hoping someone will take pity on me and assist me. I have an urgent need for an article from Volume 8 (pp.19-26) of the National Genealogical Society Quarterly. Have not been able to get it, so far, through our state's ill system. Could someone please fax it to me? Would be happy to send a check in return if fee is involved, or fax you an ALA ill form, or be your friend forever, or do almost anything else you would like me to do to get this?

Help!!

Happy to provide more details -- like the title and author, or anyone can help me out.

Much thanks for any consideration.

Greetings fellow genealib listers!

If you or your patrons have ever wanted to search The New England Historical and Genealogical Register online for free, check out www.NewEnglandAncestors.org <<http://www.NewEnglandAncestors.org>> on Thanksgiving. Spread the word, and Happy Thanksgiving!

A Feast of Ancestors! NEHGS Offers Free Access to the Register Online over Thanksgiving Weekend!<?xml:namespace prefix = o ns = "urn:schemas-microsoft-com:office:office" />

The New England Historic Genealogical Society (NEHGS) is pleased to offer free access to its New England Historical and Genealogical Register database on NewEnglandAncestors.org over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend! The database will be free to everyone from Thursday, November 25, through Sunday, November 28, 2004. We encourage all NEHGS members to spread the word about this offering, and we hope that those who are not members are able to find a veritable feast of ancestors in the Register database!

Published quarterly since 1847, The New England Historical and Genealogical Register is the flagship journal of American genealogy and the oldest journal in the field. The online database includes issues from 1847 to 1994.

The Register has featured articles on a wide variety of topics since its inception, including vital records, church records, tax records, land and probate records, cemetery transcriptions, obituaries, and historical essays. Authoritative compiled genealogies have been the centerpiece of the Register for more than 150 years. Thousands of New England families have been treated in the pages of the journal and many more are referenced in incidental ways throughout. The articles in the Register range from short pieces correcting errors in print or solving unusual problems to larger treatments that reveal family origins or present multiple generations of a family.

While gathered with family over the Thanksgiving weekend, this offering is a unique opportunity to search for ancestors, New England families, notables, and more in one of America's most prestigious genealogical journals. Details on how to obtain free access to the Register will be available beginning on Thanksgiving, Thursday, November 25, on the home page of the NEHGS website, www.NewEnglandAncestors.org <<http://www.newenglandancestors.org/>> .

Elise,

We have Family Tree Maker on two of our computers. The main problem we've experienced is that Family Tree Maker always saves a copy of the genealogy records to the hard drive. Although you can save the files to a floppy, I am unaware of a way to do this without saving something to the hard drive. FTM automatically does this. Since FTM always brings up the last family tree that was being worked on there are potential privacy issues. If you have a program like Deep Freeze which deletes all "new" local files after shutdown, this should take care of the problem. If anyone out there knows another way around this, please let me know.

One advantage to FTM is that it comes with the Family Archive Viewer, which allows patrons to easily use CD-ROM products such as Germans to America and other CD-ROMs from Br?derbund/Genealogy.com.

The FTM software we have here does get some use, but I don't think it is used very often.

Hope this helps. I'll be watching this topic with interest.

Sincerely,

Kristen Newton Smith

I would suggest that in a public area, this would be a bad idea. The LDS centers often have PAF droppings on their computers, but that's more of a controlled environment. Based on 30 years experience, I would not feel good about people having this most personal of data available on what are public access PC's. We have too many bizarre characters around the library to feel good about doing that. I personally would never advocate for that in my library.

Does anyone have much experience with Ancestry Library Edition and Heritage Quest Online, for public use? We are being solicited by ProQuest for a combined subscription to both for $1,540 per year. I have no idea how the price was arrived at.

It's a nice package (U.S. census every name 1790-1930, PERSI index, WWI draft, SS deaths, etc.), but I am wondering if the people who might want to use it in a serious way already have it at home. I think these are the same databases that are available to individuals. I am not much interested in getting this great database, and then having patrons only look at it once or twice.

William;

These are the 2 single most popular databases our library subscribes to. This is out of over 200 databases! Heritage Quest is accessible from home with a library card and pin number. Ancestry is only accessible within the library but that doesn't slow down use. Many, many users don't subscribe to Ancestry due to cost and are thrilled to use it at the library.

We have a subscription to both and our patrons use both all the time. The good thing about Heritage Quest is that our patrons can access our subscription from home. Most of our patrons do not subscribe to Ancestry at home because of the cost and come here to use it instead.

We have both and the price was similiar to what you were quoted. The products are different in that Ancestry datbases focus more on general records (marriages, births, etc) and HQ gives you access to published books that you might have to travel a great distance to view. In other words, they do complement each other and both will be used.

You've probably gotten several replies, but I'll put in my two cents. I work in a public library that offers both databases. They get more use than any of our other subscriptions. Many people can not afford or are unwilling to pay for Ancestry.com, which has several levels of access at increasing prices. HeritageQuest is only available through a library. The great feature our patrons love is that they can access it from home with remote authentication (e.g. library card number). I highly recommend both. $1,540 for both is quite reasonable. They do some kind of formula with the library's service area size to come up with the price. I highly recommend both.

Bill,

The Ancestry Library Edition is new and should be including everything that is on the personal Ancestry.com site with a couple of additions that are not available on Ancestry.com: Persi and a much easier search method.

The benefit of the package is that HeritageQuestOnline has much better census images, does not require downloading the infamous MrSID viewer, and images can easily be changed from positive to negative and from 200% down to 100% or up to 400% for easier reading.

My understanding is that Proquest is adding some things from HeritageQuestOnline onto the Ancestry Library Edition so there will be some redundancy but all in all, would provide a complete genealogy package for your patrons.

The disadvantage to the package is that HeritageQuestOnline is available remotely but not Ancestry Library Edition which is only available in the library (can't compete with Ancestry's personal subscriptions via Ancestry.com).

We have both HeritageQuest and AncestryPlus (we have not been migrated to Ancestry Library Edition yet). They are, as other people have mentioned, extremely popular. We have two genealogy computers in my department that are capable of reaching these services, and they are almost always in use.

Many people do shy away from home subscriptions to Ancestry due to the perception of high cost and difficulty with customer service (such as cancelling subscriptions and such), and we do not offer remote access to HeritageQuest. However, we are strong advocates to interested customers of signing up with Godfrey Library in the Godfrey Scholar program for home HeritageQuest use. Most of the department staff (myself included) and many of our users are Godfrey Scholars. This assists us in our personal research, which we all enjoy doing at home.

We are excited at the changes we will see when we go over to Ancestry Library Edition. There is no doubt in my mind that it will continue to enjoy the same high usage as its predecessor.

I have found the exact opposite. Especially on the 1930 census, HQ's images are crisper, clearer, and not riddled with the muddy looking streaks that much of Ancestry's 1930 for our area is.

As I tell my customers, AncestryPlus is easy to search and hard to print from. HQ is harder to search but easier to print from. So our customers use them in tandem and all is well.

Bill,

The Ancestry Library Edition is new and should be including everything that is on the personal Ancestry.com site with a couple of additions that are not available on Ancestry.com: Persi and a much easier search method.

The benefit of the package is that HeritageQuestOnline has much better census images, does not require downloading the infamous MrSID viewer, and images can easily be changed from positive to negative and from 200% down to 100% or up to 400% for easier reading.

My understanding is that Proquest is adding some things from HeritageQuestOnline onto the Ancestry Library Edition so there will be some redundancy but all in all, would provide a complete genealogy package for your patrons.

The disadvantage to the package is that HeritageQuestOnline is available remotely but not Ancestry Library Edition which is only available in the library (can't compete with Ancestry's personal subscriptions via Ancestry.com).

In my estimation, the construction of the actual family trees (once the building blocks are gained through research in my department) should remain essentially a private enterprise on a home computer. Many of the concerns raised here trouble me also, as FTM and other programs are not really designed to be used in a "shared workstation" environment.

For my personal research at home, I use and am satisfied with FTM. We have earlier versions here at the library for our CD-ROM computers, but most people are not interested in using the product here for fear their personal information may be stored on our computers.

Elise,

We have Family Tree Maker on two of our computers. The main problem we've experienced is that Family Tree Maker always saves a copy of the genealogy records to the hard drive. Although you can save the files to a floppy, I am unaware of a way to do this without saving something to the hard drive. FTM automatically does this. Since FTM always brings up the last family tree that was being worked on there are potential privacy issues. If you have a program like Deep Freeze which deletes all "new" local files after shutdown, this should take care of the problem. If anyone out there knows another way around this, please let me know.

One advantage to FTM is that it comes with the Family Archive Viewer, which allows patrons to easily use CD-ROM products such as Germans to America and other CD-ROMs from Br?derbund/Genealogy.com.

The FTM software we have here does get some use, but I don't think it is used very often.

Hope this helps. I'll be watching this topic with interest.

I would make only one addition to Colleen's comments. The sales rep I spoke with indicated:

Included in AncestryPlus, but NOT included in Ancestry Library Edition

- a.. Passenger and Immigration Lists Index (PILI)
- b.. Biography and Genealogy Master Index (BGMI)
- c.. City Directories of the United States, Various Time Periods and Locations (Gale's City Directories collection)

So we will lose some information, but we're finding that the price has been

That sounds like a great price. We were quoted a price of $1800 for Heritage Quest alone so could not subscribe. The databases complement each other. I assume that Heritage Quest in this package will still allow your patrons to access from their homes in which case, you may not know they are using , but I'll bet it gets used. I do not think you will have a problem with the databases being under used, but see what others on the list have to say. We have AncestryPlus and people love it.

I agree that the Ancestry images are almost always more clear. Ancestry is also easier to maneuver the image to print it large enough to see AND to get the entire image. Each (Ancestry & HQ) have their own advantages to the way names are searched.

Elise,

One way to provide patrons with access to genealogy software without the hassle of worrying about locally stored files is to let them know about free web-based genealogy software. For example, Ancestry.com has free web-based family tree software available on their web site similar to Family Treemaker. (I am talking about the Ancestry.com web site, not AncestryPlus.)

By web based, I mean that the files are stored on Ancestry's servers and patrons can access it with a username and password. There is no fee for this service, but patron's will have to create their own username and passwords. Basically, it's the same idea as web based email. Patrons log into their accounts through a web site on public computers, but the information remains password protected.

The cool thing about web-based software is that you can access it anywhere you have an Internet connection. I use Family Tree Maker at home, but I upload my info as gedcoms to the Ancestry site so that I can view it when I'm away from home. (NOTE: THIS IS NOT THE SAME THING AS THE ANCESTRY WORLD TREE WHICH IS NOT PRIVATE. AWT IS FOR SHARING INFORMATION WITH THE GENERAL PUBLIC)

- 1.To access this web based software, go to www.ancestry.com/trees.
2. Scroll down to the bottom of the page where it says:
"Online Family Tree
Create and grow your tree by using Online Family Tree - a private, password-protected service for creating, editing, and sharing your family tree. Start building your tree today!"
3. Click on "Start building your tree today"
4. After you have named your tree and clicked on Save, you will be brought to a registration/login page.

You could have a shortcut to the above (or another) web site on the computer desktops and have handouts about how to register, etc.

This is just an idea as an alternative. We have not tried the web based software idea at our library.

Note: Ancestry also has free software for the desktop called Ancestry Family Tree (AFT). AFT is a different program than the web based tree I've described above.

If anyone know of any other free "web based" software where you can privately store your family tree online, I would love to hear about it.

Hope this helps.

Thank you for all the good advice I've been getting about Ancestry and Heritage Quest. It's an area I know very little about, and I knew the list would come through.

Subject: [Genealib] Genealogical software for public use.

Message-ID: <462AD2F92A7B4E46A8A02C410EEBBC0C4B4A79@rrmail.corr.round-rock.tx.us>

We do get questions about which software should I buy if I'm a .....(insert beginner, advanced, Jewish, etc.etc.)? We don't promote any one software. We have a genealogy computer with many different demos or in a couple of cases, the actual software, that are available to browse through. TMG, FTM, PAF are the ones I know for sure are on there but it has others as well. I also direct them to GC magazine and maybe NGS newsmagazine, among others, to search for software reviews. Periodically, the computer is cleaned up in case anyone has added personal trees and info but that really hasn't been a problem. The demos are good to have "pretend or historical" trees on them to see how their product works.

One of my if I could get to it ideas was to gather a list of genealogy software with their websites and contact info AND where they have been reviewed.

Is anyone currently providing family tree software for the public to use on their library computers? I am investigating which software packages are available for such use and am looking for the pros and cons of such a service.

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

Subject: [Genealib] Ancestry Library Edition

Message-ID: <1ED50F01E57A054199A81EAEDE4809F1108C7590@hq-zephyr.agll.com>

To All,

I enjoyed reading the recent comments about Ancestry Library Edition and HeritageQuest Online. However, some misconceptions about the two products have apparently arisen and I felt it would be best to promptly clarify things.

1. Ancestry Library Edition is owned by MyFamily.com Incorporated and distributed by ProQuest Information and Learning. The product is updated, maintained and hosted by MyFamily. As such, there are no plans to share or transfer content between Ancestry Library Edition and ProQuest's HeritageQuest Online. Rather, the products are complementary with the only overlap being the 1790-1930 U.S. Federal Census.

2. The vast majority of the content in Ancestry.com (the consumer website) is also found in the Library Edition. However, there are several Ancestry.com databases that are *NOT* included with the Library Edition:

- One World Tree(sm)
- Obituary Collection
- Historical Newspaper Collection
- PeopleFinder
- ProQuest's Genealogy and Local History book collection. (These full-text books were added earlier this year to Ancestry.com, but not to the Library Edition.)
- The Ancestry World Tree and the Ancestry Message Boards are read-only in the Library Edition. Patrons will not be able to upload personal GEDCOM data, post messages or reply to messages.

3. The Periodical Source Index (PERSI) is available to libraries via HeritageQuest Online. For consumers, it's available via Ancestry.com and the Ancestry CD-ROM. PERSI will not be added to Ancestry Library Edition.

4. AncestryPlus from the Gale Group will be discontinued on August 30, 2005. Ancestry Library Edition has everything in AncestryPlus EXCEPT:

- Passenger and Immigration Lists Index (PILI), Biography and Genealogy Master Index (BGMI), and Gale's set of city directories
- Ancestry Library and Learning Center

5. Included with Ancestry Library Edition, but NOT found in AncestryPlus are the following:

- Immigration Collection, which is growing to include the complete New York and San Francisco Passenger Lists with images; passenger lists from all major U.S. ports including Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans; naturalization records (1700s-1900s); and immigration records for more than 100 countries

- Simplified user interface
- Simplified tips page
- Customized patron help system
- New simplified viewer in 2005 (w/o Mr. SID)

- New online usage reporting system in 2005

I think I've covered all the bases here, but if you have any questions or concerns please feel free to contact me.

Regards,
Bill Forsyth

Hi Bill,
Thanks for the details of the Ancestry Library Edition. I used to enjoy using the UMI Obituary Collection which is owned by ProQuest. Is this database currently offered anywhere publicly or are there plans for it?

Bill,

I think you're referring to the obituaries from our current newspapers collection that used to be in Ancestry.com about 3-1/2 years ago. That database is no longer available and there are currently no plans to release a similar product.

Mary,

I don't mind at all, and you don't need to give any credit. If you want any handouts or need additional assistance, just drop me a note off-line.

Good Luck,
Bill

Bill,
I recently tired Heritage Quest through my Godfrey Scholar. I wondered if there is a way to have control on how to print the page of a census? In Ancestry I can go into the print properties and change of landscape and get the full page. When I tried to print from Heritag Quest I got half a page, I moved over to view the other side and re-printed and still got the same half page as previous.
Printing is a big issue at our library as it impacts the small staff.

Maria and all-
Here's what we do & advise our patrons in Alexandria, VA. If you only hit "print" in HQ you will only get the partial page to print. Hit "Download" and you will then have to select between a .pdf or a .tif file. We ask the patrons to save the .pdf and then email it to themselves using a file name for surname and year....for example, "smith_1870.pdf," "jones_1900.pdf," etc. or anything that will make sense to them later. When you open the file in Adobe Acrobat, we have found that you can crop the image with the graphics tool (the button identified by the circle and square inside the broken line square) to eliminate any extraneous black areas outside the sheet, then print just the area inside the crop. Actually, we've had "eye-popping-wow" success printing the census sheets "landscape" on the printer than can handle 11" x 17" paper.

Subject: [Genealib] FYI: New Database @ Alexandria Library (Volunteers for Freedom: Black Civil War Soldiers in Alexandria National Cemetery)

Message-ID: <41AC9501.6080509@alexandria.lib.va.us>

Alexandria National Cemetery was established by the Union Army in 1862. Of the 3,500+ soldiers buried here, more than 250 are African-American. Many were first buried at Freedmen's Cemetery (1001 S. Washington Street) but later re-interred at the National Cemetery.

This database was created after a careful review of Volunteers for Freedom: Black Civil War Soldiers in Alexandria National Cemetery by Edward A. Miller, Jr., located in Local History/Special Collections. Miller's sources included -- but were not limited to -- pension files, military service records, and hospital records. He published earlier research on the topic in Historic Alexandria Quarterly (Fall 1998; Winter 1998).

Arranged alphabetically by last name, the database includes information about the soldier's birth date, birthplace, condition/occupation at enlistment, date/place of enlistment, regiment/company, rank, date/place of discharge, post-military activities, and date of death/cause of death as reported by Miller. Wedding dates, names of wives, and names/birth dates of children are included when available. Researchers will want to examine Miller's volume for details that are highlighted in the "Notes" column.

Photocopies of these biographical sketches are available. Contact the Library for details: Phone: 703.838.4577 ext.213; FAX: 703.706.3912. We are open: Monday-Thursday, 9 am - 9 pm; Friday, 9 am - 6 pm; Saturday, 9 am - 5 pm, Eastern. Please check the Alexandria Library's web page for holiday closures.

The database may be viewed on our web site:

Based on our system setup, cropping of PDFs is also the most appropriate measure to teach our users when printing from Heritage Quest.

Heritage Quest actually has a fully realized set of guidelines for these matters, easily accessible by visiting the What's New page:

Printing Enlarged Census Images In Acrobat Version 5:

http://www.heritagequestonline.com/prod/genealogy/images/Printing\_Enlarged\_Census\_Images-Acrobat\_Reader\_5.pdf

Printing Enlarged Census Images In Acrobat Version 6:

http://www.heritagequestonline.com/prod/genealogy/images/Printing\_Enlarged\_Census\_Images-Acrobat\_Reader\_6.pdf

There are also two other helpful guides on this page:

Searching The Census- Getting Started:

<http://www.heritagequestonline.com/prod/genealogy/images/HQ0censusguide.pdf>

Searching Books- Getting Started:

<http://www.heritagequestonline.com/prod/genealogy/images/HQ0booksguide.pdf>

So, you can use the PDF guides as a step-by-step helper to learn the procedure. Your particular printer(s) may have some specialized settings, which you would need to learn about, but for the rest of the steps, these guides are invaluable.

Sorry, I didn't mean to sound so abrupt. I was interrupted and hit "send" before I meant to.

I just foresee problems involving downloading and having to use email (which we've had to forbid on the genealogy room computers) for our library with using this method. I like Mr. Sid, because I am able to maneuver it to get what I want to print instead of having to accept what has been decided for me. I'm adaptable to other methods as long as they are user friendly. But, I haven't seen any indication of this with Ancestry Library Edition.

Ignore the e-mail suggestion if it doesn't fit your policy. But JJC's links to HQ's own explanation will really help. Practice without a patron present and you too can look slick, although without a printer which takes 11 x 17, eye-popping is beyond me.

Maria and all-

Here's what we do & advise our patrons in Alexandria, VA. If you only hit "print" in HQ you will only get the partial page to print. Hit "Download" and you will then have to select between a .pdf or a .tif file. We ask the patrons to save the .pdf and then email it to themselves using a file name for surname and year....for example, "smith_1870.pdf," "jones_1900.pdf," etc. or anything that will make sense to them later. When you open the file in Adobe Acrobat, we have found that you can crop the image with the graphics tool (the button identified by the circle and square inside the broken line square) to eliminate any extraneous black areas outside the sheet, then print just the area inside the crop. Actually, we've had "eye-popping-wow" success printing the census sheets "landscape" on the printer than can handle 11" x 17" paper.

I have never sent the downloads to email. We usually have our patrons click download, then PDF then you can print. The quality is better and you can view without having to save (since you cannot save anything on our library computers). Then you can choose a section or print the entire screen. I would think you would email them only if the patron wanted to keep their own computer based copy of the pdf file.

We have had a problem with printing census images from HeritageQuest also, particularly when we had an older printer for some reason. The majority of our patrons who use HeritageQuest are not very experienced with computers. They need to be able to print what they see on the screen before them with minimal effort on their part. Most of our staff can not (or are not willing to) learn all the hoops one must jump through to successfully print from HQ. We also have disabled e-mail and download (except to Acrobat) features on our public access computers for security reasons. Also, even the printer we have now will only print 8 1/2 x 11. We have placed copies of the printing instructions by the computer, but we still find lots of abandoned copies--not paid for, of course--piled around the printer, resulting from unsuccessful attempts to print from the census. The service has been a valuable added resource for our library, but we sure would love to have a simpler method of printing for both our staff and patrons.

I too second that trying to encourage patrons to rename files and e-mail them to themselves is outside the scope of what I really want to be doing (and what good computer security means to us).

Our genealogy computers are networked into a Xerox copier, so we teach patrons how to take full advantage of printing on larger sheets of paper, so long as they are also aware of the cost.

I frankly have done the HeritageQuest printing procedure so many times that many people like my verbal "Step-By-Step" better than HQ's instructions. I am telling them exactly what to do on our particular system for their particular needs, which can in many cases be better for our older patrons than trying to work their way through the explanation.

However, for our more computer-inclined patrons, the HQ explanations are great.

A couple of side notes. When working on my own office computer, which does not have some of the restrictions of the public computers, I prefer to download the TIFF files instead of the JPGs (better quality and easier to manipulate). They give much better printing results, too.

Also, I cannot stress enough the importance of teaching the HQ method to the computer users. Even though it can seem difficult at first, they get used to it, and learn a new skill. Too many people make the mistake of doing the HQ printing for their patrons thinking it will save them anguish.

Ignore the e-mail suggestion if it doesn't fit your policy. But JJC's links to HQ's own explanation will really help. Practice without a patron present and you too can look slick, although without a printer which takes 11 x 17, eye-popping is beyond me.

You don't have to accept what has been decided for you on HQ. Go to download, then view in Adobe Acrobat. In Adobe Acrobat you can use the graphics select tool to print exactly what you want.

Dear List, and Bill, if you're around,

It was nice to come back from my weekend to this thread because I spent much of my day last Saturday (things were slow here) finding census records and working with the print download. This process has long been a puzzle to the patrons and staff in our outlying branches, as well as at "the big library." I've practiced enough to have it down fairly well, and I've published "tips" to system staff, but it remains a problem. What I'd like to see, if it can be done, is a way to do larger print. The enlargements are not much bigger than the original. Why can't we do sections of pages at 200%, for example, moving around on the page and printing out all of it on four or so pages. Few libraries have printers that do 11 X 17. The viewed images are wonderful, so readable, but the print-outs are less so. I often suggest to patrons that they use a blank form from the census year and record the info while they have it up and can more easily see it. It also provides a teaching opportunity: blank forms are available, and it's a good idea to transcribe data carefully and soon after finding it.

We have had a problem with printing census images from HeritageQuest also, particularly when we had an older printer for some reason. The majority of our patrons who use HeritageQuest are not very experienced with computers. They need to be able to print what they see on the screen before them with minimal effort on their part. Most of our staff can not (or are not willing to) learn all the hoops one must jump through to successfully print from HQ. We also have disabled e-mail and download (except to Acrobat) features on our public access computers for security reasons. Also, even the printer we have now will only print 8 1/2 x 11. We have placed copies of the printing instructions by the computer, but we still find lots of abandoned copies--not paid for, of course--piled around the printer, resulting from unsuccessful attempts to print from the census. The service has been a valuable added resource for our library, but we sure would love to have a simpler method of printing for both our staff and patrons.

Sorry, I didn't mean to sound so abrupt. I was interrupted and hit "send" before I meant to.

I just foresee problems involving downloading and having to use email (which we've had to forbid on the genealogy room computers) for our library with using this method. I like Mr. Sid, because I am able to maneuver it to get what I want to print instead of having to accept what has been decided for me. I'm adaptable to other methods as long as they are user friendly. But, I haven't seen any indication of this with Ancestry Library Edition.

This seems too technical for me to remember, much less try to show

Maria and all-

Here's what we do & advise our patrons in Alexandria, VA. If you only hit "print" in HQ you will only get the partial page to print. Hit "Download" and you will then have to select between a .pdf or a .tif file. We ask the patrons to save the .pdf and then email it to themselves using a file name for surname and year....for example,
"smith_1870.pdf," "jones_1900.pdf," etc. or anything that will make sense to them later. When you open the file in Adobe Acrobat, we have found that you can crop the image with the graphics tool (the button identified by the circle and square inside the broken line square) to eliminate any extraneous black areas outside the sheet, then print just the area inside the crop. Actually, we've had "eye-popping-wow" success printing the census sheets "landscape" on the printer than can handle 11" x 17" paper.

The C. Burr Artz Trust has five (5) mahogany, five-stack, reducing sectional barrister bookcases for sale (see attached photo). They were previously used in Frederick County Public Libraries, C. Burr Artz Library. The cases were made by the Fred Macey Company, Ltd. of Grand Rapids Michigan and were purchased between 1903 and 1905. The sets have their original tops and bases and have solid glass roller bearing doors. The doors are decorated with their original hardware (extra large pearl brass knobs; two per door). Further information about the original part numbers is available upon request.

Each complete five-stack is 33.75 inches long and 67 inches high. The base unit is 11.25 inches deep, 33.75 inches wide and 15 inches high. All other shelves are 9.75 inches deep, 33.75 inches wide and 13 inches high.

If you are interested in purchasing these bookcases please submit a bid to either of the following addresses:

Beth Pelle
Frederick County Public Libraries
110 East Patrick Street
Frederick, MD 21701

OR

bpelle@fredco-md.net

The bid must include the name, address, phone number, and e-mail address of the person who would like to purchase the cases. If a firm or organization is submitting the bid then the name of the firm and the name of a contact person must be included. Please indicate the number of cases you would like to purchase (we are selling only complete five stack units) and the amount you are offering to pay. If you are bidding on more than one five-stack unit please also give a price per unit and a total price. All bids must be received by December 15, 2004.

Successful bidders must be able to come to Frederick County to pick up the bookcases and be able to carry the pieces from their current location to their vehicle.

If you have any questions or need further information please contact at bpelle@fredco-md.net or 301/631-3767.
