Marianne,
Thanks for the information about the OLC conference. I'll have to watch more carefully next year when scheduling. I am an OLC member by being a trustee at my local public library, but they must have my address/email wrong because I never get anything. Yes, this may impact a few people.
Thanks.

Everyone,

There have been two articles on genealogy in scholarly journals recently that may not have crossed everyone's desks. I thought some of you might be interested knowing about in them.

Elizabeth Yakel and Deborah A. Torres. "Genealogists as a 'Community of Records'." The American Archivist, 70:1 (Spring/Summer 2007), 93-113. The first author gave a version of this article as a paper at the 2006 Organization of American Historians conference here in Washington. It was an interesting paper and now an interesting article. Ms. Yakel is a librarian or archivist in Michigan, and she and her co-author give a very interesting perspective on genealogical developments in the US in the late 20th century. You will surely recognize many points as you read.

Francois Weil. "John Farmer and the Making of American Genealogy." The New England Quarterly, 80:3 (September 2007), 408-443. The article is about early American genealogy and a prominent early American genealogist. It is by an author in France who is writing a book about "the history of genealogy in American culture", and yet he does not thank a single genealogist, American or otherwise, in his opening footnote -- only historians or librarians in historical society libraries. One wonders if he has even spoken to many American genealogists or genealogical librarians for his research (Only one person I know has spoken to him briefly). The article is, however, very interesting, and worth reading. The book probably will be too, but I can't help having the same feeling that I had when someone who never worked at DAR wanted to write a book years ago about doing genealogical research in our collections. The "inside-the-profession" or "inside-the-building" viewpoint may be lacking. Stay tuned I guess.

We are proud to announce the publication of Elizabeth Shown Mills' new reference work, EVIDENCE EXPLAINED: Citing Historical Sources from Artifacts to Cyberspace. In our judgment, Mrs. Mills' book is now the definitive guide to the citation and analysis of historical sources.

EVIDENCE EXPLAINED has two principal uses: it provides citation models for most historical sources-especially original materials not covered by classic citation guides. Beyond that it can help us understand each type of record and identify each in such detail that we and our readers will know not only where to go to find our source, but, equally important, the nature of that source so that the evidence can be better interpreted and the accuracy of our conclusions properly appraised.

Most importantly, Evidence Explained discusses source citations for every known class of records, including microfilm and microfiche, and records created by the new digital media:

- Websites
- Blogs
- Digital books and journals
- DVDs
- CDs
- Audio files
- Podcasts

Subject: [archives] book for young genealogists

I got this on my RootsWeb Review. I have not read the book.

"Young Adult Novel for Budding Genealogists

What do you do with all of the fascinating stories you've gathered about your ancestors? You could turn them into a young adult novel, as Stephen Davidson did in "Letters for Elly."

As a fifteen-year-old, Elly has to spend the summer with her great-aunt and uncle. Their idea of a good time is visiting graveyards and researching the family tree. It looks like Elly is doomed to have the most boring summer of all time until she leans against an ancient tombstone and begins to receive letters from the past on her laptop computer. Are they really from seven siblings who lived through the American Revolution? Using local archives, the Internet, and tombstone data, Elly attempts to unravel the mystery. At the core of this novel are the true stories of a family from Redding, Connecticut.

Suitable for inspiring young genealogists or helping students learn about the loyalist experience, this illustrated paperback is available for $15.00 CDN, online at www.carterhousetearoom.com"

Professor Nathaniel Lane Taylor has written a multi-part article on John Farmer and his genealogy that is being published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register starting with vol 160, (October 2006), p 261 "Genealogist John Farmer discovers his ancestry" and continued in all four issues of vol161. I will alert him to this article from Francois Weil.

Example Updates:

A.
Pedigree & Lineage Networking: Family Trees
<http://www.academic-genealogy.com/archives.htm#Pedigree>
In a nutshell, general Pedigree & Lineage Information, Networking with Family Trees, and notable Social Networking sites - blog - search function, are all combined with communities and chat directories, homepage construction and personal web sites.

B.

Ancestor Roots Information:

OneSource Genealogy and Family History Searchable Databases

<http://www.academic-genealogy.com/ancestorrootsinformationdatabases.htm#Databases>

Under sub section DATABASES - GENERAL:

* Online Data Vendors and Information Brokers

There are many websites that sell or provide for free, personal information about individuals. This information is gathered from many sources including white pages listings (directory assistance), publicly-available sources and public records.

- Data vendors that offer an opt out policy
(Companies that offer a name removal option)
<http://www.privacyrights.org/ar/infobrokers-optout.htm>
- Data vendors that do not offer an opt out policy
(Companies that do not offer a name removal option)

Favorite Quote of the Day: D&C 9: 7-8

Behold, you have not understood; you have supposed that I would give it unto you, when you took no thought save it was to ask me. But, behold, I say unto you, that you must study it out in your mind; then you must ask me if it be right, and if it is right I will cause that your bosom shall burn within you; therefore, you shall feel that it is right.

Message-ID: <50D2A394B859B34290A44800675359A9026A5313@exchsrv1.statelibrary.local>

The Encyclopedia of American History digital collection spanning the years 1789 to 1969 is now available online to all State Library of Ohio card holders

Because the U.S. Congressional Serial Set is an historical record of all aspects of American life it has been called the Encyclopedia of American History. The Serial Set, which consists of American State Papers, the House and Senate Documents and the House and Senate Reports bound by session of Congress, are of special interest to historians, legal researchers, scholars and genealogists.

The Lexis-Nexis Serial Set digital collection spans the years 1789 to 1969. There is a link to the Serial Set search form on the Government Information page at www.library.ohio.gov/govinfo/slogovt.html under Quick Links on the right side of the page. At the prompt to log in, you must enter your username and patron id. Your patron id is the last nine digits of the bar code located on the back of your State Library of Ohio library card. If you do not have a State Library of Ohio card, there is an online patron registration form at www.library.ohio.gov/services/publicpatron.html
<<http://winslo.state.oh.us/services/publicpatron.html>>

If you experience problems logging in, check the Off-Site Access FAQ at http://www.library.ohio.gov/services/reference/ez_offsitefaq.html

You must use the advanced search form to search the Serial Set. If you need assistance searching, please contact the Reference Desk at 614-644-7051.

Just a quick question I'm sure has already been answered, so my apologies. Our public library is thinking about getting Ancestry for the Border Heritage Center. We already have HeritageQuest, but our local Family History center doesn't have Ancestry, so it might be worth it. Can anyone give me a ballpark on price? We are also thinking about remote access, though we'll have to get software for that.

Since you have Heritage Quest ProQuest will give you a discount on Ancestry Library Edition. You should probably budget about $1800 a year.

Message-ID: <7.0.1.0.2.20070916185457.023e2cf8@calmail.berkeley.edu>

Dear List,

According to WorldCat, a couple of hundred libraries own a copy of "The librarian's guide to genealogical services and research" by James Swan (2004 edition), published by Neal-Schuman. The nearest one to me is in the Reference section of the Oakland Public Library (Calif.) and I have not yet managed to get there to look at it. I do have an ILL request in for a circulating copy of the 1998 version of this title, but the 2004 edition includes a CD-ROM.

My questions for list subscribers:

Does anyone who has this title in their collection use it on a regular basis? Is it helpful? Are there other titles covering the same material which you use more often?

Do you think it would be worth purchasing (for the list price of $75) for a genealogical society library? (My library committee members are balking at the price and want me to justify it. But I come from a work environment in which science books costing hundreds of dollars are purchased without so much as a second thought.)

I have searched in vain for adequate reviews of this title, and the information I have found is not consistent as regards what is on the CD vs. what is in the printed book. Some of the checklists sound unique and worthwhile, especially if they can be printed and handed out to patrons, and I am curious about the chapter on "Building the Genealogical Collection."

All opinions welcome. Please reply to me off-list, unless you are so enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should buy it, or so un-enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should avoid it.

THANK YOU!

According to WorldCat, a couple of hundred libraries own a copy of "The librarian's guide to genealogical services and research" by James Swan (2004 edition), published by Neal-Schuman

My questions for list subscribers:

Does anyone who has this title in their collection use it on a regular basis?
Not any more.

Is it helpful?
It is most helpful for librarians who know little or nothing about handling genealogy questions. I often point it out to new librarians at my library who have an interest in helping those customers.

Are there other titles covering the same material which you use more often?
Nothing as recent that I know of.

Only if you need it for the reasons I mentioned above.

Just a quick question I'm sure has already been answered, so my apologies. Our public library is thinking about getting Ancestry for the Border Heritage Center. We already have HeritageQuest, but our local Family History center doesn't have Ancestry, so it might be worth it. Can anyone give me a ballpark on price? We are also thinking about remote access, though we'll have to get software for that.

Dear List,

According to WorldCat, a couple of hundred libraries own a copy of "The librarian's guide to genealogical services and research" by James Swan (2004 edition), published by Neal-Schuman. The nearest one to me is in the Reference section of the Oakland Public Library (Calif.) and I have not yet managed to get there to look at it. I do have an ILL request in for a circulating copy of the 1998 version of this title, but the 2004 edition includes a CD-ROM.

My questions for list subscribers:

Does anyone who has this title in their collection use it on a regular basis? Is it helpful? Are there other titles covering the same material which you use more often?

Do you think it would be worth purchasing (for the list price of $75) for a genealogical society library? (My library committee members are balking at the price and want me to justify it. But I come from a work environment in which science books costing hundreds of dollars are purchased without so much as a second thought.)

I have searched in vain for adequate reviews of this title, and the information I have found is not consistent as regards what is on the CD vs. what is in the printed book. Some of the checklists sound unique and worthwhile, especially if they can be printed and handed out to patrons, and I am curious about the chapter on "Building the Genealogical Collection."

All opinions welcome. Please reply to me off-list, unless you are so enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should buy it, or so un-enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should avoid it.

THANK YOU!

Ancestry pricing is based on the population of the area your library serves.
We pay a little less than Bill as Concord NH is about 40,000 people and Northampton, MA is about 30,000.

Dear List,

According to WorldCat, a couple of hundred libraries own a copy of "The librarian's guide to genealogical services and research" by James Swan (2004 edition), published by Neal-Schuman. The nearest one to me is in the Reference section of the Oakland Public Library (Calif.) and I have not yet managed to get there to look at it. I do have an ILL request in for a circulating copy of the 1998 version of this title, but the 2004 edition includes a CD-ROM.

My questions for list subscribers:

Does anyone who has this title in their collection use it on a regular basis? Is it helpful? Are there other titles covering the same material which you use more often?

Do you think it would be worth purchasing (for the list price of $75) for a genealogical society library? (My library committee members are balking at the price and want me to justify it. But I come from a work environment in which science books costing hundreds of dollars are purchased without so much as a second thought.)

I have searched in vain for adequate reviews of this title, and the information I have found is not consistent as regards what is on the CD vs. what is in the printed book. Some of the checklists sound unique and worthwhile, especially if they can be printed and handed out to patrons, and I am curious about the chapter on "Building the Genealogical Collection."

All opinions welcome. Please reply to me off-list, unless you are so enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should buy it, or so un-enthusiastic that you think other list subscribers should avoid it.

THANK YOU!

My questions for list subscribers:

Not any more.

Is it helpful?

It is most helpful for librarians who know little or nothing about handling genealogy questions. I often point it out to new librarians at my library who have an interest in helping those customers.

Are there other titles covering the same material which you use more often?

Nothing as recent that I know of.

Do you think it would be worth purchasing (for the list price of $75) for a genealogical society library? (My library committee members are balking at the price and want me to justify it. Only if you need it for the reasons I mentioned above.

The Dennis (MA) Historical Society is seeking to digitize some unusual Dennis town records containing genealogical information, and is looking for a possible company to accomplish this effort. The issue is that the documents are 18x24 inches, and are from the 1820-1870 period. Both the size and age of the documents require a company with the proper equipment & procedures.

I would appreciate any suggestions sent to me at phowes@verizon.net as the most expedient route.

Are most of your books bound soft / hard/ spiral/ ????

I am only interested in HARD COVER, library bound. Most of the time.

I do occasionally buy others if the books in one I really want and that is the only way I can get it.

Next I prefer unbound so I can have it hard bound.

My primary books, are a self published research tome in two volumes, hard cover and sold mainly for use in research, historic, genealogy libraries and museums.

Each volume is 8-1/2" x 11" and each volume contains about 500 pages of alphabetically arranged records consisting of military and basic genealogy of more than 3,600 US Submarine men lost during WWII. The work also contains the stories of the 52 lost boats (US Submarines).

The third Edition of the books will soon be out of print. However most all the material, plus some revisions are available on CD-ROM's.

Edition four, with substantial updates are being planned for release sometime about mid 2008.

Also: US SUBMARINE MEN LOST DURING WWII

See the following for a description of the work.

<http://www.subvetpaul.com/Diedwwii.htm>

A. State Index (Spiral Bound) and a CD is included with the third edition books.

There are men from every state listed.

Other supplements are usually spiral bound.
NY State research on ALL submarine men, by another author.
A roster of names, rates or ranks of all the US men and passengers is available.
An Anthology of stories told by the men who were there at the time, was soft cover, now out of print.

Thank you for your interest.

DIRECTOR OF LIBRARY SERVICES

Director of Library Services

The Lancaster County Historical Society in Lancaster, PA seeks a senior level appointment for Director of Library Services. The Director will join a leadership team to assist the President & CEO with the management of a premier regional historical society. Located on seven acres amidst an arboretum and adjacent to President James Buchanan's Wheatland estate, the historical society is partner in a new initiative to create a Campus of History dedicated to educating the public on the history of country, commonwealth and county. The Campus of History will seek to integrate the strengths and resources of both organizations as it plans for expanded facilities. In addition to the 15,000 plus volume library, the historical society includes rich collections of eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth century journals, manuscripts, rare books, maps, architectural drawings, photographs, county records and genealogical resources.

The Director of Library Services will be responsible for the administration, preservation, and management of all library collections and the administration of public access to both the library and archival collections. The successful candidate will supervise a professional staff of librarians, genealogist, research assistants and volunteers as well as work closely with Director of Archival Services, Director of History on the Web and Stauffer Curator, the IT specialist and administrative members of the leadership team. The Director of Library Services will also participate in collaborative initiatives with other local and regional libraries and will coordinate the application of new library information technologies to enhance public access to the collections.

Job Requirements:

Masters degree from an accredited library program, experience in developing library-based public programs, a track record of leadership in the library field, a customer-service oriented philosophy and a desire to work with users of all ages. Experience or coursework in historical and genealogical collections management as well as a broad understanding of library information technologies is required. Experience with database management, grant writing and teaching is a plus. The successful candidate will have the ability to reach out and work with all levels of users and staff. The candidate will have the ability to set and achieve departmental priorities and to inspire a team of professionals dedicated to serving a broad patron/customer base.

This is a full time, senior management position with health and retirement benefit packages. Please send a formal cover letter with salary requirements, a detailed resume, and any additional material that you believe will advance your candidacy to Library Search Committee, % Donna Pflum, Lancaster County Historical Society, 230 N. President Ave., Lancaster, Pa. 17603 or you may submit the above materials electronically to : DirOfLibrary@lancasterhistory.org. Formal review of applications will begin on October 15, 2007.

Lancaster County Pennsylvania combines a vibrant city with a focus for the arts and a rural community with a rich agricultural heritage. Lancaster County is steeped in more than 300 years of history and is home to 500,000 culturally diverse inhabitants.

It has been an exciting year for the Genealogy Center of the Allen County Public Library. Moving to our new and greatly expanded facility has given us wonderful space in which to serve our customers. And we had such a fine time hosting the recent FGS conference. I know some of you were able to attend that conference. If you're like me, you find those conference days of networking and camaraderie so exhilarating.

Just days after the conference, we were successful in filling an open reference librarian position in our Genealogy Center with a very talented professional from the Tampa/Hillsborough County, Florida area. We are looking forward to her start with us on October 1st.

Now we find ourselves in the position of continuing the search for another talented reference librarian with interest and expertise in family history as one of our colleagues is changing directions and focus within the library field. If you are interested in exploring this position or know of any librarians who might be interested in serving genealogists in a very collegial atmosphere among a very strong collection, please see the listing for the job at our library's website: <www.acpl.lib.in.us/hr/index.html>

These are truly the best of times for genealogy librarians working at the Allen County Public Library. The new building, the expanded space for the Center, the deployment of new technologies, and the new programming initiatives will continue to make this an exciting and energizing place to work.

If anyone would like to communicate directly with someone here at the Allen County Public Library, please feel free to contact me <CWitcher@ACPL.Info> or our Human Resources Manager, Peter Ford <PFord@ACPL.Info>.

I got this on my RootsWeb Review. I have not read the book.

"Young Adult Novel for Budding Genealogists

What do you do with all of the fascinating stories you've gathered about your ancestors? You could turn them into a young adult novel, as Stephen Davidson did in "Letters for Elly."

As a fifteen-year-old, Elly has to spend the summer with her great-aunt and uncle. Their idea of a good time is visiting graveyards and researching the family tree. It looks like Elly is doomed to have the most boring summer of all time until she leans against an ancient tombstone and begins to receive letters from the past on her laptop computer. Are they really from seven siblings who lived through the American Revolution? Using local archives, the Internet, and tombstone data, Elly attempts to unravel the mystery. At the core of this novel are the true stories of a family from Redding, Connecticut.

Suitable for inspiring young genealogists or helping students learn about the loyalist experience, this illustrated paperback is available for $15.00 CDN, online at www.carterhousetearoom.com"

Thanks for everyone's interest. If you don't feel an email will benefit the group, feel free to email offlist. The question about types of SB though may be of use to all so...

The Gregath Publishing Company publishes in several different standard softbound formats. Any order prefix with a G or R can be ordered unbound by libraries - we retain the manuscripts and can produce clean book blocks as service that is price-offset by paying the bound purchase price. As we do not produce all prefix AD books, we do not always have the specific binding type to provide. However, due to your question, I will try to provide specific types to the library list in the future. FYI - all books by Kenneth Weant are plastic comb bound.

Thanks again,

Greetings,

Your email contact came to us from an email send out from Curt Witcher's office. Don't worry, beyond this email, your contact has not been

by our company.

However, we do have an e-list for libraries to receive new book release information and pricing updates. The frequency varies, but rarely more than a dozen a month. How do you sign up for this? Just reply to this email and tell us you want us to add you. Feel free to share this invitation with anyone. If you don't want to be on our list, do nothing, as your email contact will be purged from our system, possibly by the time you read this.

Please keep us in mind as a resource, our full listings can be found 24/7 at <http://www.gregathcompany.com/catalog> <<http://www.gregathcompany.com/catalog>> . If you prefer a catalog by mail, ask for one - we can send it on CD, or a printed one. We also do library rebinds, and publishing of all sorts. We'd like to be a solution for your needs. You can check new listings, reprints, updated editions or new pricing out yourself at <http://www.gregathcompany.com/catalog/catadd.html> at any time. The Gregath Publishing Company deals in some resources exclusive to our company, as well as handling many other author and publisher work.

Please find our newest research book announcement to follow:

The Gregath Publishing Company is pleased to announce the following genealogy resource books now available to order through our company:

Free to a good home, I would prefer to send to a library or archive rather than an individual, but if there are no takers, then I will send it to an individual.

Check out this news item from the New York Times. All of its digital content prior to 1923 will soon be freely accessible, as well as anything since 1987. (It's out of copyright anyhow, I guess they finally decided to let the public access it easily.) It will be a mixed bag (free vs. pay-per-view) for 1923-1986.

If you don't have the Proquest Historical New York Times subscription, now you have an alternative.

Hello,

I have been asked to use my genealogy collection usage statistics to justify my budget. I would like to know what statistics everyone uses to do the same. We use our "In-house Count" since our collection does not circulate. What other stats does everyone add to the in-house counts to show usage.

Thanks so much

An interesting feature we have used successfully is to count the register and tally the number of visitors from (a) our county and the 4 adjoining counties, (b) elsewhere in Texas, and (c) out of state visitors.

You can probably get survey figures about how much visiting researchers contribute to your economy as they spend for meals, rooms, etc.

Our best tale involves researchers who came especially to us seeking far back ancestors. They began their journey in South Africa.

You might also consider your web site statistics if your genealogy and local history department have a presence online.

Many requests are answered by the web site section especially if you have a lot of historical content online, so hits/page vies/visitors in that area might be considered reference questions answered or visitors.

Recently the BBC noted that research is being done to test whether the Russian name Lermentov can be connected through DNA analysis with the Scottish name Learmonth (or variants) of the 16th century. They also mention other Russian names that may be connected to Britain. The site of the short article is <http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/science/nature/6987222.stm>

Hi, all--

I collect as many statistics as I can here. (And use them to justify the purchase of our genealogy databases, the collection budget for history and genealogy books and microfilm, what types of materials we buy, and to give our Administration some good numbers they can present to the Board, Hennen rankings, and the public.)

*Sign-in register: we also count the visitors from out-of-area, out-of-state, and out-of-country. (Just last week we hosted a couple from Belgium who had come to the US specifically to visit our Library for family history research!)

*Computer sign-in register: gives us the number of patrons who used our patron computers

*Door count: number of visitors each day (helps us to learn about seasonal patterns of usage, which in terms helps us plan when to have programs)

*Number of in-person, telephone, electronic, and mail reference questions

*Database usage statistics supplied by database vendors

*ClickTracker: a bit of code that we put into all of the links on our website to in-house and paid databases. This helps us see how many people are using our databases for which the vendors don't provide statistics.

*Number of visits to all the different pages of our website

*Number and kind of materials downloaded from our website

*Circulation count from our ILS

*In-house use count for reference materials (books, CDs, and microfilm). We recently started using a bar code scanner to record each item that has been used in-house, and found that these numbers shot up as a result. Apparently when we were just making a quick tally of the books we saw being used, we were significantly undercounting.

*Number of attendees at our classes, presentations, and programs

*Number of volunteer hours put in each month

When I create a report showing all these numbers and then analyzing them, I can make a very solid case for how useful people find our resources, how important our area is to the Library and the local economy, and what a great return on investment we provide.

Best wishes,
Libby Feil

Anyone interested in the research Michael mentions may also be interested in the following recent imprint:

When Scotland Was Jewish: DNA Evidence, Archeology, Analysis of Migrations, and Public and Family Records Show Twelfth Century Semitic Roots
by Elizabeth Caldwell Hirschman and Donald N. Yates 264 pages
McFarland (July 3, 2007)

<http://www.amazon.com/When-Scotland-Was-Jewish-Archeology/dp/0786428007>

Although the book could have undergone better proofreading, the premise is fascinating and ... at least to this long-time Jewish genealogist ... plausible. The authors find that for many Scots, particularly those from the west of Scotland, there exists a strong possibility of Sephardic ancestry originating in Spain/Portugal post-expulsion (1492 and following) and/or in France and the Low Countries from as early as 1066.

I have no interest in this book, other than being a genealogical researcher and librarian.

The Pennsylvania State Archives has added over 300,000 images of land records to the Web. (That's more than 31 gigs of data.) You can access these new records at The Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission's Web site, at www.phmc.state.pa.us <outbind://117/www.phmc.state.pa.us> . (That URL is a redirect that'll take you to portal.state.pa.us and a much more complex URL.)

The additions include warrant registers (1733-1957), patent indexes (1684-1957) and the Philadelphia Old Rights index. You can start your search here; be sure to read the instructions because there are several sets of documents you can search.

A lot of the available documents are in PDF format so make sure you've got Adobe Acrobat reader.

We came up with a formula to monitor our reference questions. We realized that just counting the people who signed in was not really an accurate reflection of our reference interactions with in-person patrons. Usually, patrons ask multiple questions in the course of their research visit and just counting them once from a sign in sheet is not doing justice to the quantity of transactions. At other library reference desks, the same patron might talk to a reference librarian 5 different times in the course of finding their materials during one research visit.

We estimated that we have an average of three interactions with each in person patron. So we multiply our montly sign in sheet by three. We believe this more accurately reflects our referenc workload.

Kathy and all,
We also collect zip codes. This shows where our patrons are coming from. Our local tourism office is very interested in those figures.

Hello,

I have been asked to use my genealogy collection usage statistics to justify my budget. I would like to know what statistics everyone uses to do the same. We use our "In-house Count" since our collection does not circulate. What other stats does everyone add to the in-house counts to show usage.

Thanks so much

Kathy,

We ask each guest to sign-in when they come to the history room to use the collection. We maintain a count for microfilm used; manuscripts used; vertical files used, e-mails answered, internet assistance and computer usage, reference and directional assistance; mail we've answered; and program attendance both in the library and off-site.

I have a patron who wants to try to find a letter to the editor of the Atlanta Journal & Constitution that his father wrote in the 1950s. He does not know any more about the date but says it was printed in the paper and "caused quite a stir". The writer was named Edward (Ed) Hicks. I tried the online archives searching by Edward Hicks and Ed Hicks but without a paid subscription I couldn't access much. Does anyone have a fuller access than I do and might be able to do a search? I know it's a long shot but thought I would throw it out there.

Hello!

I'm sure you have already tried this but just in case:

Is he sure that his father actually signed his name? If not maybe you could try a subject or keyword and then the category "letters to the editor" or editorial".

Hello,

Our library charges from $5-$20+, depending on the amount of detail the patron provides and also on how much staff time will be required to fill the request. Here is the link to our request fees page:

Tracy: Your question is not a long shot if you are wondering about who in Atlanta might respond to your request. We are here in the Atlanta-Fulton Public Library, and like all of us, we get these kinds of questions all the time. "It was in the paper, but I don't really know when." As far as I know there is not index to the Atlanta papers from about 1925 to 1985. We have in our Special Collections a hand made subject and name index on a million 8X6 cards for the AJC from 1939-1979. As far as I know this is the only index that exists for the AJC for these years. It is not particularly easy to use or to maintain. And it often produces no results what so ever. With all that said, I will search for Edward Hicks in it and see what happens. If it turns up some results, I will contact you directly.

And of course, if the patron can offer any more clues about the editorial, such as a subject, that might provide other avenues of approach.

I have a patron who wants to try to find a letter to the editor of the Atlanta Journal & Constitution that his father wrote in the 1950s. He does not know any more about the date but says it was printed in the paper and "caused quite a stir". The writer was named Edward (Ed) Hicks. I tried the online archives searching by Edward Hicks and Ed Hicks but without a paid subscription I couldn't access much. Does anyone have a fuller access than I do and might be able to do a search? I know it's a long shot but thought I would throw it out there.

Has she tried the news archive on Google using the name of family member and Atlanta newspapers. In 1925 the Atlanta constitution and the Atlanta journal where separate newspapers.

Actually we own a copy already. You might check with Cheryl Smith at Plano (cheryls@plano.gov) or Lynette Jones at Carrollton (lynette.jones@cityofcarrollton.com. If neither of them wants it you can offer it for the cost of postage reimbursement on the list serve for genealogy librarians. (genealib@mailman.acomp.usf.edu)

Hi, Tracy,

We got a donation of a paperback book, A Texas Collection: Portraits before 1882, edited by Margaret Wardlaw Rouer, published by The Historical Activities Committee of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, 1977. It's 64 pages of portraits, with some identification.

Do you want it for your genealogy collection? I'd be happy to pass it along.

I just had someone come in and ask for "the series God Speed, which are oral histories of everyone who crossed the plains as pioneers". (His words, not mine.) Does anyone know what this could be?

I tried to explain that it probably wasn't everyone, but he knows better. Of course, he is also disgruntled that they are so slow releasing the census records; after all, with computers we should have instant access to the newest one!

RE: [Genealib] FW: name changes between countriesI'm betting your patron means Goodspeed's (Nashville and Chicago) these are so much 'vanity press' because the individual told his own story (and who's going to say anything bad or unflattering about themselves - not me!).

But there is also a lot of true and many, many great clues to help with your genealogy. As I remember these were done in the 1890s and the salesman went around and asked people if they'd like to be included ---- and of course, that was the sale of at least one book (usually more) Many times photographs were included so that makes these really great.

They are countless - just enter Goodspeed's History of (state).

I just had someone come in and ask for "the series God Speed, which are oral histories of everyone who crossed the plains as pioneers". (His words, not mine.) Does anyone know what this could be?

I tried to explain that it probably wasn't everyone, but he knows better. Of course, he is also disgruntled that they are so slow releasing the census records; after all, with computers we should have instant access to the newest one!

Scientific American has published an interesting article: Do living people outnumber the dead? (Sept 2007) pp. 126.

See: <http://genlibrarian.blogspot.com/2007/09/scientific-american.html>

Interesting for genealogists - it estimates the number of people that have ever lived - as compared to the number living today. It puts in perspective our task of documenting every person and putting them correctly in the family tree.
