We are the publishers of Jeff Bowen's books in the ongoing series, EASTERN CHEROKEE BY BLOOD. Here are Jeff's comments about why he undertook the series and how it differs from those of Jerry Wright Jordan.

Ms Jordan's books are a great achievement. They contain a great deal of information not strictly found in the Guion Miller Rolls, such as the lengthy "Miscellaneous Testimonies," which mostly pertain to rejected claimants.

What I have done is to abstract information directly off the National Archives microfilm. These abstracts are short statements explaining the conclusion of the Guion Miller Commission as to whether they were accepted or rejected. My books are a faithful abstraction of each application. Nothing added, nothing taken away. Just the purest possible form of the archive record. Painstakingly proofed, every word, as meticulously as possible.

For many years people have waited for Jerry Wright Jordan to go beyond Volume 9 of her series since the applications continue on to # 45,857. Knowing my publisher would not accept a work starting with application # 27801, I started at the very beginning, using the title from the archive record, "Eastern Cherokee By Blood 1906 - 1910," and a format which imitates that of the microfilm. It is my belief that within the next year I will be able to finish the pure form of the application abstracts. We are trying to make each book approx. 206 pages, plus the index.

As of September 29, 2008, I have finished abstracting Volumes 10 (Applications 34,186-38,215) and 11 (38,216-42,265), and have started Volume 12 (42,266-45,857), the last book in the series.

I hope this helps explain the difference between the two series. My goal is to get the series done, so that the libraries and Native American genealogists can have a complete set to work with.

If you have any more questions please don't hesitate to contact me directly at the email given below.

Sincerely,

Jeff Bowen

You may need to check out the records that are published in the nine volume set you have:

Prior to purchase, I looked up each requested book in our card catalog - obviously Bowen's set was not included in our catalog, but upon review, I wonder if the two sets are identical - and if I should cancel the order of Bowen's set in order to save money for new books that include information we do not have in our collection? If the sets are fundamentally different, or each includes some different names, or if the Bowen book is - say - better indexed... I'd be happy for us to follow through on the order...

Message-ID: <BAY136-W5088AB539B5BF3352699F5C9420@phx.gbl>

Gone West Publications is pleased to announce the release of 2 more volumes of Howard and Randolph co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, available in both book form and economically-priced CD's! The new CD format allows independent researchers a more affordable resource with easy, every-word search functions that could launch their research into whole new family lines in seconds!

But, before you invest, investigate Gone West Publications' on-line indices! If you have ancestors in central Missouri, don't miss this opportunity to browse through the indices for all 13 volumes now available on-line. Nearly 80,000 Missourians are listed in these PDF's and the indices are yours to view as you please! To do so, go to the following link and click on the book or books that interest you most.

<http://www.gonewestpublications.com/books.html>

Here's a look of what you can expect from these books:

Randolph co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, Vol. 1:

Thursday, October 17, 1889

Pg. #3: Everett Fullington, the 11-year-old son of John Fullington of this vicinity, took a notion four or five weeks ago that he would strike out for himself and boarded the train at this point for NE. Not being able to find employment in that State, he crossed over into KS, where he secured work, but the labor was heavy, the fare light and wages low, and on Saturday last he returned to old

Randolph co, thoroughly disgusted with life in the West, and satisfied to spend his future in grand old MO, the land of plenty.

Boone co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, Vol. 1:

Thursday, June 28, 1888

Pg. #3: Long lost Ike Crisman has returned home. Some two months ago, he drew $500 from the bank, stating that he was going down the river to buy hogs, but would be back in a day or two. Mrs. Crisman had given him up as dead and employed a man to run the farm near here while she looked after the growing crop on Gallinipper Island. After six weeks, she received a postal card from Kansas City, stating that he was domiciled in the work house in that city, working out a fine. She paid his fine and brought him home. Ike states that some four weeks ago, he was arrested for carrying concealed weapons and was fined $50. Having no money, he was placed in the workhouse to work it out at the rate of 50 cents per day and board.

Boone co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, Vol. 6:

Friday, March 23, 1906

Pg. #1: We have received from our friend, Mrs. Mary Bysfield, one of the oldest residents of Rocheport, the St. Louis Republican, dated May 3, 1883. In it is an account, telegraphed from Columbia, of the trial of Mike Shroyer, who murdered his wife near Sturgeon, Boone co, in October 1876. After the crime Shroyer disappeared and his whereabouts was not known until six years later, when he was found near Joplin, MO, working as a grader on a railroad. He was found guilty and sent to the penitentiary for ten years, but died before the expiration of his term. Terry Bradley, a native of Rocheport, and father of Brooks Bradley of the Democrat staff, was one of the jurors. The defendant would likely have been hanged, but got a light sentence largely owing to the immoral character of the woman he slew. In the fall of 1876, Shroyer, with his wife and three children, left Marshall, KS, for Miami co, IN, to collect money coming to her from her first husband's estate. In passing through Boone co they stopped at the home of Mr. Gulick, near Sturgeon, to get feed for their team. The woman in the wagon said then that her husband had threatened to kill her that very night. The following February some woodchoppers found the mutilated remains of a human being, and it was very easy to trace the crime to Mr. Shroyer.

Howard co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, Vol. 1:

Thursday, Jan 8, 1885

Pg. #7: Mrs. Green of Macon City, MO, widow of the late Col. Clark H. Green, formerly of Glasgow, died suddenly of heart disease at Joseph, MO, Dec 30th, aged 56 years. She had been visiting friends in that city and started to the depot to go to Dakota on a visit to her son, William Green. Burial at the cemetery of St. Joseph. She once lived in Fayette and was a daughter of Dr. Snelson, who for many years resided here. Hall K. Green, who has been living at Cape Girardeau for several years, is a son of the deceased. Mrs. Green was born May 3, 1825 in Louisa co, VA and came to MO with her parents when a child. On Feb 22, 1853, she was married to Col. Green at Fayette. On Jun 17, 1865, the family moved to Macon City where the Col. died in Sep 1871. [An informative letter from the Dr. to Mary Green is included.]

Howard co, MO Newspaper Abstracts, Vol. 4:

Thursday, Jul 12, 1906

Pg. #1: Fred Jones, son of Sanford Jones, and Emma Jones, daughter of William Jones, both of near Lisbon were first cousins, but that did not prevent them from falling in love. They wanted to marry, but the laws of Missouri prevented such, so they eloped to Oswego, KS, where they were made husband and wife Jul 5th. They then came back to Clinton, MO.

As you may have noted, these volumes are more than just a powerful genealogical tool. They also offer the reader a peek into the social values and cultural aspects relevant to their ancestors' time period. The historical significance of the articles found in these newspapers is a great learning tool for the armchair sociologist and the genealogist who has hit a brick wall. I hope that you will find them useful.

We have put online an 85 volume, 500,000 searchable index to the Rochester newspapers from 1818-1897. See:

(<http://www2.libraryweb.org/index.asp?orgid=647&storyTypeID=&sid=&>)

"The Rochester Newspaper Index is a project of the Rochester Public Library. The database consists of references to articles that appeared in the Rochester newspapers during the period 1818-1897. The indexing was done in two time periods: 1818 - 1850 and 1851 - 1897. For a list of the newspapers indexed and the abbreviations used, please consult the FAQ's.

If you would like to order a copy of an article, please consult the Ordering Information page for complete details. Articles may be sent via e-mail, fax (within the Continental U.S.) or standard post. Please allow seven (7) days for the completion of your order.

Please note that in many cases, particularly for the very early newspapers, articles may be only a line or two long. Staff cannot look at the newspaper for you before sending an article, and refunds will not be granted because an article did not contain the information you were hoping to find. (Please consult the FAQ's for additional information.)"

We hope that people find this to be useful!

International Black Genealogy Summit

*Allen County Public Library, Fort Wayne, IN *

*October 29-31, 2009 *

This momentous event signifies the first time that all of the black historical and genealogical societies in the U.S., Canada and the Caribbean will come together to celebrate the joys and challenges of black genealogy.

The idea to host this event is the brainchild of two visionaries: Marjorie Sholes, professional genealogist, FGS Delegate and former President of the California African American Genealogical Society; and Curt Witcher, former President of the National Genealogical Society and the Department Manager for the Historical Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library.

Message-ID: <4C84AD33E6714B1983483F59F25BF713@LibrarianPC>

The Ohio Genealogical Society is again hosting the OGS Genealogical Librarians' Seminar on Friday, October 10th, 2008, 9:30 AM to 3:00 PM at the OGS Library, 713 S Main St., Mansfield OH. Fee $15.00 registration and $10.00 for optional box lunch. Sessions this year are "Ideas that Came out of Building a New Library that Might be Helpful in Your own Local History/Genealogy Room" by Deb Keener of Wooster Public Library; "National Archives & Records Administration Web Resources for the Genealogist" by Galen Wilson and associates from the Dayton NARA branch; "It's Not Your Ancestors Library: Genealogy Libraries for the 21st Century" by Patricia Moseley Van Skaik of the Cincinnati-Hamilton Co Public Library; and "Developing or Locating Quality Programs for Your Local History/Genealogy Room" by Gwen Gotham Mayer of the Hudson Library & Archives. This is an educational gathering for professionals who work in the genealogy and local history field in Ohio's libraries. A mailing was sent to libraries across Ohio and I should have posted this much earlier for any who missed that. Registration may be done through the web site www.ogs.org - or by calling the library at 419-756-7294 - or by showing up at the door although we cannot secure lunch without pre-registration. The lunch choices from the web form may be emailed to tneel@ogs.org We have around 25 signed up so far but can get a few more in the seminar room and still be comfortable. Improve your genealogical research skills at the Salt Lake Institute of Genealogy, January 12-16, 2009. The Utah Genealogical Association will again be holding its very successful Salt Lake Institute of Genealogy at the Radisson Hotel in downtown Salt Lake City, Utah. This is a week-long educational experience taught by expert genealogists.

Increase your methodology skills in using the internet, researching "beyond the library," or "one-on-one-problem-solving" for your personal research project. Explore the many possibilities of the records of Spain, Latin America, German-speaking areas, or England. Focus on American records and research or the Gulf South states of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Texas.

Classes finish by early afternoon each day allowing time for research at the Family History Library, located just two blocks away. In addition (or if you can't get away during the day), there are 15 optional evening classes on dynamic topics ranging from maximizing online offerings to relevant methodologies. So much to choose from!

No matter which course you attend, you will be a better genealogist by January 16, 2009. What are you waiting for? Sign up NOW! For more information or to enroll online, visit www.infouga.org

As in the past, I am sending out another email with Book List 4 to anyone who would like to receive it. It contains books from my home library that I am thinning out because of my health (my children won't know what to do with these) , a few books published by friends, some from a deceased UDC member's estate sale; and one published by our local genealogical society.

The books are for sale--not for swap or free; payments are by money order, bank draft, or... check (if you are a library). There will not be any invoices sent and I will honor your request on a "first come, first serve" basis and give two weeks for payment to arrive. If you don't get the books you want (you will need to act fast), I will put you on a list in case someone defaults on their request. There are southeast Alabama books and other genealogical books from all over. If you would like to have this list privately emailed to you, please reply, privately, to this email with your name and email address. Many of you have seen my list before...

Historians
Message-ID: <48E953EA.9040903@ancestralmanor.com>

Hello,

In April of 2009, I will be a genealogical representative in a panel discussion about genealogy and public history at the annual conference of the National Council on Public History in Providence, Rhode Island. www.ncph.org

Public history is centered on bringing history to the public, often through museums, libraries, other special collections, historical parks, university research projects and public education programs.

In my mind, public history is an incentive for a history "of the people, by the people and for the people," ideally providing a context for civic knowledge, education and understanding for families, communities and nations.

Genealogy research reveals not only lineal begets, but the lives, fortunes or misfortunes of families and their communities over time. Genealogy methodology standards requires fact finding without regard to preferred views or generalities. As preconceptions fall away, ancestral lives become much more complex and interesting "microcosms in history." A personal window into eras and layers of history that may also reveal family ancestry on various sides of wartime, political, economic, religious or social upheaval or progress.

Such ancestral views allow for a better perspective in the larger panoramas of history.

The purpose of sparking discussions between genealogists and public historians is to provide possibilities for more synergy in our efforts.

I would like to hear from folks who have observed or participated in projects that were founded in or produced synergy between genealogists and public historians. I am particularly interested in how the collaboration was sparked and what practical issues were addressed to make the project successful.

Thanks!

Sharon Sergeant

We regularly have students from the public history program on campus do their required internships in our archives. The most significant project they worked on from a genealogical point of view was a landowner index to the 1857 Walworth County plat map. The map was later digitized and the map and index are available through the University of Wisconsin Digital Collections site. The faculty member viewed the project as a way to teach students about land use. We viewed it as making a fragile item available to all researchers - historian or genealogist.

Oshkosh in 1918: an interdisciplinary study of the 1918 influenza epidemic

The influenza epidemic that swept the globe in the summer and fall of 1918 killed more than 20 million people worldwide. In 2001, students at UW-Oshkosh engaged in a research project to understand the local scope and effects of the flu in Winnebago County. This site describes the history of the disease, the science behind its spread, and the memories of those who lived through the epidemic.

We have just added a new book to our offerings on the Dakota Conflict of 1862. "Trails of Tears: Minnesota's Dakota Indian Exile Begins," through a series of essays, tells what happened in the weeks following the defeat of Little Crow and early December, 1862, as the prisoners were moved to Camp Lincoln near Mankato, and their families were escorted to Fort Snelling to the internment camp.

Much of the information has not been in print before, including documentation on the route taken by the families and the mob plots to massacre the prisoners. These plots were covered up at the highest level of state government, and are revealed here for the first time.

Details can be found at <<http://www.parkbooks.com/Html/Trailssheet.pdf>> or in our 'hot' list at <<http://www.parkbooks.com/Html/hot.html>>.

Subject: [Genealib] Book List 4: Email privately...

As in the past, I am sending out another email with Book List 4 to anyone who would like to receive it. It contains books from my home library that I am thinning out because of my health (my children won't know what to do with these) , a few books published by friends, some from a deceased UDC member's estate sale; and one published by our local genealogical society.?

The books are for sale--not for swap or free; payments are by money order, bank draft, or... check (if you are a library). There will not be any invoices sent and I will honor your request on a "first come, first serve" basis and give two weeks for payment to arrive. If you don't get the books you want (you will need to act fast), I will put you on a list in case someone defaults on their request. There are southeast Alabama books and other genealogical books from all over. If you would like to have this list privately emailed to you, please reply, privately, to this email with your name and email address. Many of you have seen my list before...?

CIVIL WAR PATHFINDER NOW AVAILABLE

RELIC has just published a new edition of our pathfinder Chasing the Civil War. The 12 page guide covers a number of topics that may be useful for the beginner or the scholar. It suggests bibliographies for general overviews of the war and for particular battles and campaigns - with an emphasis on Virginia and Prince William County. (The Manassas and Bristow campaigns took place here.) It also highlights the resources available in our library.

It tries to help those who are searching for a particular person's life or his burial place; those tracking specific military units; those looking for historic maps, manuscripts, personal narratives, portraits, uniforms, and memorabilia; and those who want to contact organizations involved with the study of the American Civil War today.

A lot has changed in source material since our first edition over ten years ago. The new edition contains much more on internet sites and electronic databases, but also identifies useful books and journals.

The pathfinder may be read and downloaded free at our website

http://www.pwcgov.org/library/relic/civil_war_research.htm
<http://www.pwcgov.org/library/relic/civil_war_research.htm> . A print version of Chasing the Civil War may be picked up at any branch library of the Prince William Public Library System.

RELIC PROGRAMS

Here are our latest offerings. Funding for RELIC programs is provided by the Friends of Central and Bull Run Libraries. Sign language interpretation is available for Prince William Public Library programs if requested at least three weeks in advance. Subject: [Genealib] Obit of a James M. Fulton??

Message-ID: <1223567363_4899@lucius>

Hello,

This list and it's members have been so helpful to us in the past..

We've had a patron ask for information and hopefully a obituary of a semi-famous March King named:

James Melville Fulton

Mr. Fulton died on May 6th 1940 in Belmont Massachusetts.

Prior to going to Massachusetts he resided in Waterbury, Connecticut and became the conductor of the American Band which he later renamed the Fulton's American Band.

Fulton wrote at least 233 known published works.

142+ Marches, 8 Overtures, 5 Polkas, 5 Schottisches, 4 Cakewalks, 4 Gallops, 22 Waltzes, and 43 other miscellaneous works.

To some in the know his work was better than John Phillip Sousa.

Fulton was very well known in the state of Connecticut in the 1890-1920 period.

The patron has asked our help in finding any published obituaries of James Fulton // James M. Fulton // James Melville Fulton

His date of death May 6th 1940.

Can someone run a quick old newspaper search for us to see if obit exists?

It may have been published in a Connecticut, Massachusetts or New York paper.

If you come across any other articles written about him that would be like finding the holy grail for our patron.

Key words may be -

Fulton's American Band

James Fulton

Fulton and Marches

James Fulton AND Waterbury

Our email if anything can be found is:

johnw@biblio.org

THANK YOU....

I received a new family history title from the author. He requested that we pull his previous family history from the shelf and return it to him because the book had too many errors. Although the title is different, the new book is supposed to be an updated and corrected version of the first. What would you do?

I would comply, as long as it was the same title, but updated. However, I would make him pay the expense of returning it.. We have several of these "works in progress" on our family history shelf and they are updated every year or so.

I'd honor his request.

I base that on the standard library decision to weed old and outdated materials when the new and updated edition is received.

No one has the shelf space to keep every edition.

You really have two questions: the first being what your institution's policy is on dealing with donations for which an investment has already been made to add them to your collection (presumably this is a donation--if you bought the book, why return it to him?), and the second being whether you can rationalize that action as a collection development decision.

Addressing the second question: the original work, flawed as it may be, represents how history was best interpreted at a given point in time. If another researcher cites that particular work for his/her genealogy, and that original edition is no longer available to be verified at a later date, a disservice has been done, because there's no way of knowing how the "new-and-improved" version has changed history, or at least our view of it. If you don't have room for every edition and/or don't want to antagonize a patron, those are separate issues--but I would at least remind the author that every edition of a family history has enduring value, and libraries exist to preserve that value.

Susan,
You already had some good replies. Just to put in my two cents - we have gotten that request several times before and we honor that request. Certainly if the author has corrected errors in his first publication we want the most accurate publication on our shelves.

Subject: [Genealib] Author's request to pull title from shelf and return

I received a new family history title from the author. He requested that we pull his previous family history from the shelf and return it to him because the book had too many errors. Although the title is different, the new book is supposed to be an updated and corrected version of the first. What would you do?

Any request for a return to author should be addressed according to the concerns. Where I am at (an academic library) once a book hits the shelves the author has no right to ask for its return.

I'm not cold or not feeling - its up to every library to address this issue. However, think about the authors who are not completely up on what the responsibilities of an author is versus publisher. A publisher can recall items and do. However a self-publisher should consider anything printed to be an "as-is" publication and only publish updated versions.

This persons mistake was renaming the book and not just adding updated or revised on it.

Subject: [Genealib] IAJGS AWARDS STERN GRANT TO ITALIAN GENEALOGICAL GROUP
Message-ID: <327FA3CD3BEF44D8BDE2CEDFE529AEBD@DELL>

For Immediate Release

IAJGS AWARDS STERN GRANT TO ITALIAN GENEALOGICAL GROUP
IGG Will Create Online Brooklyn Brides Index for 1910-1930

NEW YORK CITY - October 16, 2008 - The International Association of Jewish Genealogical Societies (IAJGS) has awarded the 2008 Rabbi Malcolm H. Stern Grant to the Italian Genealogical Group (IGG). The $2,500 grant will be used to create, computerize, and place online an index to the names of women who got married in Brooklyn from 1910 through 1930.

The IGG provides free access to the public to online databases it creates from print and card indexes. The databases serve as indexes to 19th- and 20th-century birth, marriage, and death records and naturalization records for New York City's five boroughs, Long Island's Nassau and Suffolk counties, and some counties in northern New York State. Every name listed in the print and card indexes is included in the databases.

Nominated by the Jewish Genealogical Society of Long Island, the IGG was chosen by the Rabbi Malcolm H. Stern Grant Committee from among the nominations submitted by the IAJGS's member societies. The committee submitted its recommendation to the IAJGS's Board of Directors for its consideration and approval. The nomination was subsequently voted on and approved at the IAJGS membership meeting at this year's IAJGS Annual International Conference on Jewish Genealogy.

According to IAJGS, "The grant will make it possible for the IGG to create and computerize a Brooklyn Brides Index for 1910-1930 from original records on 268 rolls of film from the Family History Library. There is currently no such index available for this period - a period of massive Jewish immigration. The Jewish genealogy community has greatly benefited from the 12,000,000 records computerized by earlier IGG projects, and it is most appropriate to support the 1910-1930 Brooklyn Brides project, one that will surely allow many researchers to identify the descendants of female relatives who have to date been untraceable." This marks the first time that the IGG will create a database from the records themselves rather than from an existing index.

More than 500 volunteers from local genealogy groups-and individuals in Canada, Ireland, and England who learned about the IGG's projects through the Internet-compile the databases under the leadership and supervision of the IGG's Project Coordinator John Martino. The IGG first participated in an indexing project in 1999 when it partnered with New York City's Jewish Genealogical Society to create a database of Kings County (Brooklyn, New York) naturalizations.

The grant honors Rabbi Malcolm Henry Stern (1915-1994), widely considered to be "the dean of American Jewish genealogy," and his efforts to increase the availability of resources for Jewish genealogical research. The intention of the Stern Grant is to encourage institutions to pursue projects, activities, and acquisitions that provide new or enhanced resources to benefit Jewish genealogists.

About IAJGS: The International Association of Jewish Genealogical Societies is an independent, non-profit umbrella organization that coordinates the activities of more than seventy-five national and local Jewish genealogical societies around the world. The IAJGS was formed in the late 1980s to provide a common voice for issues of significance to its members, to advance our genealogical avocation, and to coordinate items such as the Annual International Conference on Jewish Genealogy. <http://www.iajgs.org>

About IGG: The Italian Genealogical Group, based in Long Island, New York, is dedicated to furthering Italian family history and genealogy. The databases it creates include every name listed in the indexes, without regard to nationality or religion. Volunteers from the IGG and other genealogy organizations in the New York area have been transcribing and indexing record collections held at local and regional archives.

It seems unfair to request that the book be returned to the author.

1. You had to "pay" for the original book.
2. Is the author offering to "pay" you for the return of the old book?
3. How do you know the new book is better?
4. Just sounds like a very odd request.

An important new book has just come out for African American research in Alabama that will be of interest to many of you. Frazine Taylor's Researching African American Genealogy in Alabama provides an overview for African American research in Alabama and then goes into detail about each of Alabama's 67 counties and their records.

Frazine is the Head of Reference for the Alabama Department of Archives and History (ADAH), so knows these sources well. She is also the coordinator of the African American Course which is taught every two years at the Institute of Genealogy and Historical Research (IGHR) at Samford University in Birmingham.

I do not make it a habit of weighing in on this type of discussion but as a researcher and a publisher of family books I feel I may have just a little insight into this request.

First: as a researcher I would hope one would not keep on the shelf books that they know contains misinformation. There is a mind set that accepts as fact anything in print.

Second: it is unprofessional not to honor a request for removal of tainted data. By not doing so one might consider that you are perpetuation a hoax. And we have enough of them already.

It is up to you to put this away.

PULL the book. Offer to return it or recycle it. If the person is willing to pay for the return, please do so, if not, recycle it.

Subject: [Genealib] Live Roots Announcement & Local Roots Introduction

Message-ID: <37228BF892E14DC1A07E2ECAB0545AF5@NJWK2ID>

Live Roots, my new genealogy search engine, was released last week. I delayed announcing it on this list for two reasons; there were a ton of excellent suggestions during the first few days, and I wanted to implement some of them. The other reason was that I needed additional time to setup Local Roots.

Live Roots (<http://www.liveroots.com/>) is a free genealogy search engine that allows visitors to search through thousands of database titles from subscription sites, books publishers and a variety of online websites. Live Roots also lets you browse through the latest database, book and website releases in its "Discover" feature, which is updated daily.

For additional details, visit "Genealogy Today Launches Live Roots Meta Search Website"

(http://www.genealogytoday.com/info/pr/live_roots_launch.html)

If you feel that Live Roots is a useful tool for genealogists, I would greatly appreciate it if you would add a link to the site from your library's public (external) website (or send the link information below to your webmaster).

Live Roots Genealogy Search

<http://www.liveroots.com/>

Now for Local Roots... I'm developing a version of Live Roots intended for on-premise access for your patrons. Local Roots (<http://www.localroots.com>) will offer a variety of special features that revolve around your geographic location and the local resources (e.g. historical society) that your patrons may have an interest in. Local Roots will also be advertising free, and configured to automatically adjust links to the major database provider websites that your library subscribes to, making the experience of using Local Roots to access them seamless.

Local Roots will also offer a subscription upgrade for the Genealogy Today databases included in the Surname Results. Subscribing to these additional databases is purely optional. You will not receive sales calls or badgering e-mails. If you're interested in pricing, just ask and I'll send you a .PDF with the details. The subscription rates are very affordable.

I'm planning to have Local Roots ready by November 3rd, but you may learn more about it and signup at any time.

Most of all, I would really appreciate your feedback on either project. Several librarians from this list were involved in the pre-launch preview, and their feedback was very helpful.

Thank you,
- illya

Her obituary simply stated her "life's work was genealogy."
Well said.

I wrote more about her work and included her lengthy obituary at:
<http://blog.genealogybank.com/2008/10/patty-barthell-myers-1930-2008.html>

I particularly liked the closing comment: "Her life was an example of overcoming enormous challenges, and making a difference in the world, patiently, quietly--and then there was the occasional wild rumpus. "

Her late husband was at the "Hanoi Hilton" the same time as John McCain.

Tom and others

While I did not know Patty nor had I heard of her, I find it very comforting to know that she is being remembered on this list. None of us will get out of this life alive so it helps to think that some of us on this list will be remembered by others once our Day comes. I also liked how her obituary stated her life's work was genealogy. Definitely well said and one can tell by reading this that Patty was devoted to this subject. I specifically liked that it was stated she wanted donations made in her name to any local library. Isn't that even more fitting a tribute to a person like her than if it stated donations were to be made to HER favorite library! Makes me feel good to read her obit so Tom thanks for forwarding this to our list.

Hello Everyone,

I am currently in my second year of library school at the University of Washington's Information School and in my first quarter of a genealogy year-long class. I am putting together a small article about Genealogy and Librarianship for the Information School's student newspaper. Our library school does not have any classes or workshops that focus on the skills and helpful resources when assisting patrons with genealogical based questions/research. If you have the time, could you answer the following questions for me.

1. What books or article would you recommend library school students read to prepare for these types of reference interactions?
2. What genealogy resources would you recommend library school students become acquainted with to prepare for these interactions?
3. What other advice would you give library school students about genealogy and Libraries?

Thanks for taking the time to answer my questions.

Hello Amber and All,

I recommend to all Library School students and all librarians serving genealogists that you read and study my large free online tutorial "Librarian's Guide to Helping Patrons with Genealogical Research" available online at <http://home.tampabay.rr.com/centans/genguide.html>. This tutorial goes into detail from a librarian helping her patrons point of view, and includes a "site map" Table of Contents.

I originally began this as a library school project ten years ago, and have kept updating it. All the pages (totaling almost 50 pages now) have been updated this year, and some new pages have been added.

If you have any questions, you can write to me at centans@tampabay.rr.com

Thank you,

Sharon Centanne
Genealogical Research Instructor since 1982

Hi Amber,

I would recommend these books to help librarians learn about genealogy research:

1. The Source: A Guidebook of American Genealogy - Loretto Dennis Szucs
2. The Researcher's Guide to American Genealogy - Val Greenwood
3. Ancestry's Red Book: American State, County & Town Sources - Alice Eichholz - I would read the sections on the states your patrons would ask about frequently to help you learn the basics about genealogy research in those states.

I would also recommend becoming familiar with the U.S. Census and state census records (if they exist) and vital records research (especially your state's access policies). I would become familiar with other local records including wills/estate records, land records, newspapers/newspaper transcriptions, city directories, local histories, church records, cemetery transcriptions/records, and maps/atlas. Military records are also very helpful, especially Revolutionary War pension files, Civil War service records and pension files, WWI draft registration cards, and military discharge papers.

I think the following databases and websites are also important:

- * Ancestry Library Edition database (library subscription)
- * HeritageQuest database (library subscription)
- * Digital Sanborn Maps (library subscription)
- * <http://www.familysearch.org/eng/default.asp> - Including becoming familiar with the Family History Library, its online records search, its holdings, its Family History Centers locally and its renting policies.
- * Social Security Death Index - <http://ssdi.rootsweb.ancestry.com/>
- * NARA - <http://www.archives.gov/genealogy/>
- * <http://www.vitalrec.com/>
- * <http://usgenweb.org/> - including local projects
- * <http://www.cyndislist.com/>
- * www.liveroots.com

I would also recommend becoming familiar with your local historical and genealogical societies, their websites, and digital collections; and your state library/state archives, their websites, and digital collections.

Other advice I would give is to keep in mind that there's no quick and exact way to do genealogy research. Your search strategy will depend on the what records exist for the time periods you're researching in the localities you're researching, as well as the ethnicity of your ancestors. I would also encourage researchers to interview family members about their family history.

Amber, you're going to get some great suggestions but one 'old standby' that I still use is Lois Horowitz' "Knowing Where to Look, The Ultimate Guide to Research." A Writers Digest Book, 1986, and not including the Internet as we know it today, nonetheless, really helpful.

And you are definitely going to need to know how to help your patrons cite their sources. Among others that she has written, begin with 'Evidence! Citation & Analysis for the Family Historian' by Elizabeth Shown Mills.

Those of us who are old timers, even some who are not trained librarians, most likely have a batch of books on our private shelves that could fill the bill.

A good article with reference books noted is Myra Gormley's "Building a Dream Library." http://www.genealogy.com/66_myra.html

Good luck with your project -

I just wanted to thank everyone for all their help. I was surprised to wake up this morning to an inbox full of wonderful response to my request for help on my article. It is nice to know I have found a community of individuals who are willing to help so much. I am hoping to become a genealogy librarian and these sources will help me as well as my article. I will post my article to the list once I am done writing it.

Thanks again for all your help!

Just last week, I discovered a new book written by Jack Simpson, "Basics of Genealogy Reference: A Librarian's Guide." Jack is Curator of Local and Family History at The Newberry Library, Chicago, IL. He's a well-respected genealogy librarian and a frequent contributor to Genealib.

The book was released on September 30 and retails for $40. It's currently available from Amazon.com (warning: the URL could change at anytime):

<http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/1591585147>

According to the product description, "This book offers novice and experienced reference librarians an introduction to tried-and-true genealogy techniques and resources. With the help of four case studies, Simpson outlines a basic starting strategy for conducting genealogy research. Later chapters deal specifically with genealogical librarianship: how to conduct a reference interview, continuing and professional development, and basic resources every collection should have. Charts, screen shots, and examples of public documents are also included; while a series of appendices present the case studies in their entirety."

Sounds to me like he's hit the bull's-eye with this book! I've already ordered my copy. Maybe we can coax Jack into giving us some more details?!

Hello, everyone:

This is a timely topic for me, because as Bill kindly noted, my book just came out:

Basics of Genealogy Reference: A Librarian's Guide

<http://www.amazon.com/Basics-Genealogy-Reference-Librarians-Guide/dp/1591585147>

When I first started working as a student reference assistant in a history library, I noticed that about half the users were genealogists. So I asked a reference librarian what I should read to learn a bit about genealogy, and she pointed me to The Source. The Source is the best reference book for American genealogy, in my opinion, but it was a bit overwhelming as a beginner, and I didn't read it at that point.

So after working as a reference librarian in genealogy for a number of years, I decided to write a short, beginner-friendly book aimed at librarians and library students who aren't planning on specializing in genealogy, but would like to know some of the basics tools and techniques for assisting family history researchers. I particularly focus on resources that will be available at many public libraries, including free internet sources and the major commercial databases. Throughout the book, I use several case studies to illustrate research methods. I also mention GENEALIB as a great resource, by the way.

I teach a similar online class on genealogy reference through the ALA, called Genealogy 101:

<http://www.ala.org/ala/mgrps/divs/rusa/development/genealogy101/index.cfm>

I'll be offering it again the spring.

Thanks for giving me a chance to mention these- I swear I didn't solicit this question so I could promote my book!

I hope there is someone out there who can use these...

I have 3 Todd CD-ROM towers (4, 4 and 2 drives) which were still functional when last used 8 or 9 years ago. I can no longer keep them around and I hate to throw them out. If you're interested, they are yours for the shipping.

I also have a couple of Pioneer CD changer 6-CD cartridges, in case you have managed to keep any of those running.

The State Library facilities, with the exception of the Museum of Connecticut History, will be closed all day Thursday, October 30th for Connecticut State Library All Staff Day. All Staff Day provides an opportunity for employees to get to know other employees, to hear from the State Librarian, and to take advantage of skill development opportunities.

The Museum of Connecticut History will be open its regular hours, 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Normal hours will resume on Friday, October 31st.

Does anyone offer refunds of unused amounts loaded on debit cards used for microfilm reader-printers and photocopiers? If yes, is it a posted/published policy, or only offered to patrons who actually request refunds? I know all the pros and cons, I just need an idea if many institutions, particularly smaller ones, are doing so.

I don't think we did. We announced the change and kept the old system functioning side-by-side with the new for quite a while.

We use a debit print card for the copiers. We do not offer refunds; instead we encourage people to keep the card because they can reload it. Being a public library, we are more often likely to have repeat customers. Occasionally, patrons will leave cards with five or ten cents on them. When we have a few, we transfer the small amounts to one card to have on hand for 'emergency printing' (i.e., students with no money).

No one has complained about our practice to my knowledge.

We are considering having our first genealogy lock-in next spring at the Medina Library. We will be working with our local genealogical society on the program. Can you give me pointers on what works well and what should be avoided?

I know the list has discussed this topic before, but couldn't find it in the archives...

Thank you!

Kathy,

Try the following Google search (it will search the GENEALIB archives):

genealib "lock-in"

That search gave me 65 results.

Kathy,

At her request, I just sent the following list to Ann Bergelt. Perhaps you will find some of it helpful in your planning:

During the fall of 2005, we began planning a special "lock-in" style event to be held one evening after the library closed. Only patrons holding tickets would be admitted and the focus would be on genealogy. (They aren't really locked in? they can leave whenever they wish!) We have now held Genealogy After Hours four times, and it has been very successful for us. We have been asked to share our procedures for planning and executing this event. We try to hold our event during Family History Month in October. Planning now begins as much as a year in advance:

1. Select a focus or topic

We have used Native American Ancestry; Those Elusive Female Ancestors; Immigration and Naturalization Records; and most recently, Effective Cemetery Research.

2. Select a date

Try to take into consideration other library and local events so as not to conflict. We have used Saturday evenings from 5 ? 9 or 5:30 ? 8:30 pm. Reserve the meeting space early.

3. Establish a budget

We have been very fortunate in having the support of our Friends of the Leesburg Library for this event. Expenses include a speaker, refreshments, printing costs, and advertisement. Most, if not all, expenses will be covered by the tickets purchased for a $10 donation each.

4. Speaker

Locate a speaker who will be available on the date selected and contract for speaker?s fee. Depending on the speaker, expenses may include mileage/travel, meals, and/or lodging in addition to the speaker?s fee. Check for special needs the speaker has (i.e. projector, microphone). Maintain contact with the speaker every few weeks and more often as the event nears.

5. Collection

Evaluate the library?s current collection for the targeted subject area and update/enhance as needed. Once this task is complete, create a bibliography of print, multimedia, and database offerings the library has on the topic selected. These can be distributed with the speaker?s handout and later made available in the Genealogy Department.

6. Refreshments

Determine whether to have them and who will provide them. Since we were asking people to be in the library for 3-4 hours, we wanted to offer ?light? refreshments, coffee, and punch. For our first two GAH?s, the Friends served goodies they had brought in themselves. For the last two times, the Friends hired a local caterer who has done a beautiful job and garnered nothing but compliments! We agreed on a menu of a variety of finger sandwiches, decadent desserts, and some sugar-free desserts.

7. Staff

Well in advance (at least 3 months) staff members are asked if they would be willing to work the evening of GAH. In return, they get to take those 4 hours off sometime during the following week. Since our library has two floors, I have two staff members downstairs with the Circulation Desk and two reference librarians upstairs (near the Genealogy Department) to assist with InterLibrary Loan requests and other questions.

8. Volunteers

The bulk of the assistance with genealogy research questions is handled by our wonderful volunteers. I publicize our event with the local genealogical society and offer a ?free? ticket to anyone who is willing to come and help that evening. They still get to hear the speaker and enjoy the refreshments, but they are available to help beginners get started and to answer basic questions or to guide them through using Ancestry or Heritage Quest. Anything they can?t handle gets referred to me or one of the other librarians. Two of the volunteers are stationed at the door to take/sell tickets and assure that no one wanders in without a ticket thinking the library is open for business.

9. More volunteers!

I also contact the local lineage, heritage, historical, and genealogical societies and offer to let them set up an information table for the evening. For example, DAR usually has a nicely decorated table and has two members here to answer questions and pass out literature. Other groups we have had represented include Kinseekers Genealogical Society, Daughters of 1812, Colonial Dames, SAR, Daughters of the Confederacy, Lone Oak Cemetery, the Leesburg Heritage Society and Historical Museum.

10. Publicity

Promote the event in as many ways as possible. We send press releases to local TV, radio, and newspapers. We send flyers to other area libraries. Eastman?s Online Genealogy Newsletter will publish upcoming events. Posters are placed in several areas of the library and flyers distributed at meetings of all local genealogical, historical, and lineage groups. Our Friends even publish a paid ad in two of the local papers.

11. Goodie bags and vendors

Promoting vendors is touchy, but I do request items (pencils, bookmarks, catalogs, samples) from genealogy vendors for goodie bags provided to attendees. I then set up a Vendor?s Information table where literature, catalogs, etc. are available. We don?t actually sell anything, but companies such as Genealogical Publishing are happy to provide stacks of promotional materials.

12. Library Promotion

Next to the Vendors table I set up a Library Information table full of flyers, bookmarks, etc. about upcoming library programs, changes in hours, database availability.

13. Evaluations

Design a short and simple evaluation form, distribute to all attendees, and have a container for them to deposit the completed evaluations at the end of their visit. Tally these after the program and consider results and suggestions in planning for next year! Don?t forget to share results with those who helped to make the evening possible.

14. Thank you notes

Make a point of thanking the speaker, each volunteer, each staff member, the Friends, and anyone else who made the event possible.

Message-ID: <A2E25C76F64D4AE1A7A4B9C3868FDB59@EndUserPC>

The recent strengthening of the U.S. Dollar against the British Pound means that the books in the following series can be purchased for up to 25% cheaper than a year ago. Enquiries can be sent to royalhouses@uwclub.net and the books inspected on the web at <http://www.theroyalhousesofeurope.co.uk>. See below for discounted price list for Libraries.

THE ROYAL HOUSES OF EUROPE

This series of books provide a full royal genealogy laid out in inter-connecting royal family trees of the Royal Houses of Europe. They cover the reigning monarchies of Europe, the great Imperial Dynasties and the former monarchies of Europe. They include the British Royal House, now the House of Windsor, descended from Queen Victoria, and the dynasties of Hanover and Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The dynasties of Hohenzollern, Romanov, Habsburg, Bonaparte and Bourbon have separate books on each, together with the Monarchies of Scandinavia, the Benelux, Iberia, Italy and the Balkans. In all cases the full descent is shown, extending to noble and commoner families, including in the U.S.A.

They are essential tools for Genealogists, particularly in researching their European ancestry.

Books in the series:

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 1: The Family of H.M. Queen Victoria.

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 2: The Families of the British Consorts.

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 3: The Descendants of King George III including the Fitz-Clarence family.

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 4: The Descendants of King George II, the Collateral lines. (2 volumes)

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 5: The Descendants of King George I, and the Stuart - Hanover connection.

SAXE-COBURG-GOTHA

The BENELUX MONARCHIES: The Netherlands Belgium Luxembourg

The SCANDINAVIAN MONARCHIES: Denmark Sweden Norway

The BALKAN and ITALIAN MONARCHIES: Greece, Roumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Serbia, Montenegro, Albania, Italy, Sardinia, Two Sicilies, Tuscany, Parma and Modena.

The IBERIAN MONARCHIES: Spain, Portugal and Brazil.

The BOURBON Dynasty of FRANCE

The BONAPARTE Dynasty of FRANCE

The HABSBURG Dynasty of AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

The HOHENZOLLERN Dynasty of PRUSSIA (2 volumes).

It covers a multitude of European Royal Houses - the earlier generations of Denmark, Sweden and Prussia, the full lines of the Houses of the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Bulgaria, and a multiplicity of Habsburg, Bourbon, Romanov, and lesser German and Austrian princes and nobles. 487 pages. 2nd edition. two volumes.

? P. Arnold, 2008 Vol: 4A: ISBN 978-0-9555094-8-3 Vol: 4B: ISBN 978-0-9555094-9-0

GREAT BRITAIN Volume 5 The Descendants of King George I - the Collateral Lines, and the Stuart - Hanover Connection.

This volume covers the lines descended from King George I, excluding those covered by earlier volumes. It covers a multitude of European Royal Houses - the earlier generations of Prussia, Russia, Brunswick and Württemberg, the full lines of Orleans-Bourbon of France and Radziwill of Poland, and many Russian, Polish, Austrian, German and Italian Houses. A section details the Stuart - Hanover connection, illustrating the succession from Queen Anne to George I. 182 pages. 1st edition.

?P. Arnold, 2006 ISBN 0-9551167-5-9

SAXE-COBURG-GOTHA The Descendants of Duke Franz, through ten generations.

The most prolific family of the Saxon duchies ruled the Coburg and Gotha Duchies until 1918. It sent its princes to take forward the British and Portuguese Royal Houses, and to establish monarchies in Belgium and Bulgaria. Its own succession passed through the British Royal family in the final decade of the nineteenth century. Its descendants include the last Habsburg Emperor, and the Pretender to the Bourbon throne of France, and a host of European royal and noble families. This volume details the complex inter-relations, descended from the patriarch Duke Franz, whose son relinquished the Saalfeld Duchy to gain Gotha in 1826. Extending to 264 pages, the book is cross referenced within itself and to the British master volume. 3rd edition.

THE BENELUX MONARCHIES The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

These three reigning monarchies are covered by this volume, which traces the House of Orange-Nassau from Willem IV, Prince of Orange, born 1711, to the present day Queen of the Netherlands. It also covers Belgium, from King Leopold I, whose Saxe-Coburg ancestry is traced in the respective volume, to the current King Albert II. The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg is covered from the first independent Grand Duke, Adolphus, whose Nassau-Weilburg ancestry is traced in the Netherlands section of this volume, to the current sovereign, Grand Duke Henri. 346 pages. 2nd edition.

THE SCANDINAVIAN MONARCHIES Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

These three reigning monarchies are covered by this volume, which traces the Danish House of Holstein-Glücksburg from Christian IX to the present day Queen of Denmark. It also covers the Swedish House of Bernadotte since its inception, and the Kingdom of Norway from its re-establishment in 1905. The Swedish Vasa dynasty from King Adolphus Frederik, and the earlier Danish Kings from King Frederik V, are traced through to the present day. Included are the two Schleswig-Holstein Duchies, and the related houses of Great Britain, Russia and Prussia, and most of the German protestant houses. 228 pages. 2nd edition.

I have almost completed this certificate program for Genealogy Librarians. I have found almost all the classes to be very good. Because the course tract I am taking is for genealogy librarians instead of genealogy researchers I've been able to put to use in a practical way a lot of the exercises connected with the classes including creating a collection development policy separate from the one for the rest of the library collection, and am working on redesigning our portion of the library's web page.

I agree with Tracy. I just finished my PLCGS in Librarianship this summer from NIGS. I thought it was excellent. Now I just need the job to go with it ... :-)

As a professional genealogist, I am ecstatic that BU is offering this certificate (although I wish it were available via distance education). I think that the more schools we can get offering such programs, the more genealogy will be taken as a serious academic discipline. And, the list of instructors they have makes me drool. Adding BU to the short list of other schools offering genealogical specialization (at whatever end degree/certificate) can only benefit the discipline. I wish them well.
