Course Prefix and Number: RED 6846
Course Title: Practicum in Reading: Cambridge Schools Experience
Regular Instructor(s): Dr. Danielle Dennis
Credit Hours: 3
Instructor Email: dennis@usf.edu

Course Description:
This section of Practicum in Reading will take place in Cambridgeshire (UK) primary schools. Students in this course will focus on explicitly supporting novice teachers as they develop understandings of literacy teaching and learning.

Course Objectives and Goals:
The Cambridge Schools Experience is created through the lens of six themes. All program participants will focus on the same six themes, but will engage in work towards learning intentions specific to their development (i.e., undergraduate, Master’s, doctoral). Since part of your role this summer is to support the development of novice teachers as teachers of literacy, you will receive a chart that identifies their learning intentions and required documentation (in a separate document). Below are the themes with your learning intentions and required documentation.

Textbook(s) and Readings:

Recommended Texts:

This guide is strongly recommended, as all papers will be submitted according to this format- for this course and all other courses in the MA Reading Program.

Course Overview:
During the Cambridge Schools Experience (CSE), you will be learning how to coach novice teachers of literacy. You will select one small group of novice teachers to study for your case study, though you will work with all of the novice teachers participating in CSE. Each week, you will work with a different coach (Danielle, Brian, or Allison) at her/his respective school site, so you can observe varying methods of literacy coaching. You will also observe video coaching sessions with Danielle, and then plan with those students whose video coaching sessions you observed. You will then conduct a video coaching session with one or more novice teachers at the end of the experience.
