Putting the “Thanks” in Thanksgiving

These are the “Goldilocks months” in Florida when everything is just right. The weather is wonderful, our snow bird friends are returning, and everyone is gearing up for the season. At WUSF Public Media, though, we’ve been going at full speed for the past few months implementing many exciting new changes. Now, as Thanksgiving approaches, it’s the perfect time to slow down for a few moments and consider how much we have to be thankful for.

Let’s start with the thousands of individuals and businesses that make up the WUSF family of members. Our creative, original, reliable programming depends on you. We never forget it. We give thanks for our members every month; this is a good month to say it just a little louder.

We’re especially thankful for your continued support as we expand and redefine our programming. Our mailboxes are filled with letters from WUSF 89.7 listeners who are delighted with our new programming; news and entertainment during the day and jazz all night. Thank you for your letters and calls; keep them coming!

We’re equally grateful to our classical music listeners as we continue to work to bring our classical station WSMR 89.1 on the air. Despite the unfortunate delay created by unforeseen signal interference, our classical fans have been wonderfully patient. Many of them are now listening to the station via the internet.

Whether on the air or over the web, there’s a constant purpose behind what we do. We strive to provide quality content that is relevant to our members and improves their quality of life. That means locally produced, in-depth investigatory journalism about the issues that matter in the greater Tampa Bay area. Florida Matters, Florida Stories, and University Beat are some of the ways we help create a cultural dialogue. Our user-friendly, interactive website is another.

Our new format is one way we follow through on our commitment to our listeners. Our commitment to the community includes collaborating with a variety of groups and events. We’ve included some information in this issue about the Artist Series’ inspired new Chopin Festival we’re thrilled to help promote.

Thanks to you, WUSF Public Media remains a leader in both radio and television. Thanks to you, we continue to move ahead. Please join us this season on a stimulating voyage of discovery and adventure!

Dale Chihuly’s organic and otherworldly glass creations are a brilliant blend of artistic simplicity and technical innovation. This documentary follows the artist and his team as they prepare his ambitious 2008 retrospective exhibition at the de Young Museum in San Francisco. Chihuly’s exquisite sculptures challenge convention with bold color, dramatic forms and extraordinary composition. In addition to interviews with architect Frank Gehry and other artists, art critics and museum executives, this film highlights the collaborative qualities of Chihuly’s creative process, in which he entrusts hundreds of talented glassblowers to execute his vision. Airs Monday, November 15, 10 p.m.

WUSF Salutes the Duckwall Foundation

The Frank E. Duckwall Foundation is recognized as one of the University of South Florida’s most generous and dedicated contributors. Since 1994, it has pledged nearly $2 million to support innovative programs throughout the USF system. WUSF has been a lucky benefactor. We were awarded $50,000 over five years to support the “Duckwall Challenge,” aimed at increasing the number of new donors who join WUSF’s Cornerstone Society. The Duckwall Foundation also awarded the station a grant of $100,000 to purchase state-of-the-art digital equipment for its TV studios. As a result, WUSF now provides four digital channels of TV programming. Earlier this year, the Duckwall Foundation pledged a $30,000 challenge grant to help WUSF create a new radio and television production studio on the USF Sarasota-Manatee campus. This new studio will serve the Sarasota community as the home for the new classical WSMR 89.1 radio station, as well as a space for live, on-air performances and interviews. We are grateful to the Duckwall Foundation for giving us the necessary resources to increase our services and improve the quality of life for west central Florida.

Carl Kasell

We would like to thank our Cornerstone members for their philanthropic support of WUSF with a rare opportunity to hear Carl Kasell speak about his life and work, Saturday, November 13, 2010, at Traditions Hall at USF. A veteran broadcaster, Kasell is the official judge and scorekeeper for NPR’s weekly news quiz show, Wait Wait... Don’t Tell Me! Before his work with Wait Wait..., Kasell hosted NPR’s Morning Edition. He is a 2010 National Radio Hall of Fame inductee and has won numerous public radio awards. Interested in becoming a Cornerstone member? Please call Cathy Coccia at 813-974-8624.

The Wall

If you find yourself near WUSF’s Tampa studios, stop by to see a new public art installation entitled “The Wall” by New York-based artist Siebren Versteeg. The installation consists of two 46” interactive touch screen monitors pulsing with a flow of constantly changing digitized images. The work was commissioned through USF’s Institute for Research in Art’s Public Art Program with funds provided by Florida’s Art in State Buildings Program.

Outstanding Staff Award

Congratulations to Daniel R. Gemmell, WUSF’s manager of fiscal and business administration, for being awarded a 2009 USF Outstanding Staff Award. “Dan is the type of employee who comes along every so often,” said JoAnn Urofsky, WUSF’s general manager. “He is an exemplary individual who truly embodies esprit de corps. His dedication is nonpareil.” Congratulations, Dan!
