AN INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GENOCIDE SCHOLARS

Call for Interns

Genocide Studies and Prevention: An International Journal (GSP) offers ongoing editorial internships. We are looking for highly dedicated graduate students or recent graduates who have an interest in genocide studies and a native proficiency in the English language. All interns will contribute to the production process of the GSP journal issues.

Job Description

The editorial internship allows individuals to participate in the journal production process. This internship is an opportunity for students to gain an in-depth experience in scholarly publishing and to show future employers of skills developed related to publishing and editorial management. The duration of the internships are six months and can be extended upon the intern's request and performance. Duties include:

- Thorough checking and correction of manuscripts' citations.
- Proof-reading final versions of articles for pre-production.
- Ensuring final version of articles are compliant with journal style and citation guidelines.
- Reading submissions and providing critical feedback to editors.

There are no regular work hours, but interns are expected to work as required when papers are submitted and when they are ready for publication, with an efficient turnaround. The intern must be flexible and willing to undertake the work when required.

Qualifications

- B.A. degree in social sciences (preferably in political affairs, international affairs, global affairs, law, history, sociology, or in a closely related field).
- Strong interest in genocide studies, violence studies, memory studies, peace and conflict studies.
- Currently enrolled in the final year of an undergraduate degree or a graduate program; or a graduate of a M.A. or Ph.D. program in the past two years.
- Excellent writing and proofreading skills.
- Familiarity with Chicago Manual of Style citation an asset.
- Ability to meet deadlines.
- Ability to work within a team.
- Strong communication skills.
- Working knowledge of MS Office.

Compensation: This is an unpaid position, as with all the editorial staff of GSP.

Application Process: Please send a cover letter, your resume, and a short writing sample to Dr. Christian Gudehus, GSP's Editor-in-Chief at Christian.Gudehus@ruhr-uni-bochum.de.

About GSP

Genocide Studies and Prevention: An International Journal (GSP) is the official journal of The International Association of Genocide Scholars \(IAGS\). IAGS is a global, interdisciplinary, non-partisan organization that seeks to further research and teaching about the nature, causes, and consequences of genocide, and advance policy studies on prevention of genocide. IAGS, founded in 1994, meets to consider comparative research, important new work, case studies, the links between genocide and other human rights violations, and prevention and punishment of genocide.

GSP is a peer-reviewed journal that fosters comparative research, important new work, case studies, the links between genocide, mass violence and other human rights violations, and prevention and punishment of genocide and mass violence. The E-Journal contains articles on the latest developments in policy, research, and theory from various disciplines, including history, political science, sociology, psychology, international law, criminal justice, women's studies, religion, philosophy, literature, anthropology, and museology, visual and performance arts and history.
